DEATH STALKS OVER ISLANDS HIT BY STORM

Bahamas, Virgin Islands,
Porto Rico, Are
Devastated

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—Death and widespread destruction has been caused by the tropical hurricane that tore for a thousand miles through the West Indies from beyond the Virgin Islands to the coast of Florida, in a path probably fifty miles wide.

What has happened in the group of twenty islands comprising the Bahamas was not known today. Nassau, the chief city, has been cut off from communication for two days.

Reports received by the United Press, the United States government and communications companies from the West Indies gave only a partial picture of the havoc caused by the storm.

In the Virgin Islands, the navy was advised that six were dead and twenty injured, with damage estimated at $400,000.

Porto Rico, next in the path of the storm, was wrecked from coast to coast. San Juan, the capital, was in complete touch with the United States today, but communication with the interior of the island was impossible. Wires were down and roads impassable.

Any accurate estimate of the death toll therefore was impossible. The United Press correspondent at San Juan called that the death toll in the entire island probably would exceed 100. The estimated dead included more than thirty-five at Humacao, ten at Ponce and more than thirty at Cayey.

Governor Horace M. Towner's estimate, made to the United Press, that more than half of the population was homeless would mean about 700,000 people in distress.

SAN JUAN, PORTO RICO, Sept. 17.—A meeting at the governor's palace has been called for today to consider means of bringing relief to the thousands of Porto Ricans who are homeless and starving as a result of the hurricane which swept the island Thursday.

Relief is being rushed to the island from the United States.

Communication with the interior of the island is still impossible. Torrential rains have caused many landslides along the highways. Trees have been torn up by the roots.

At Cayey it was reported that thirty had perished and that thirty-five had died in the city of Humacao. It was believed that the injured in the two places would number more than 100. Ponce was reported as devastated but there was no definite count of dead or of the destruction there.

Estimates of the damage by a group of bankers here, placed the loss of cattle at $200,000; the loss of the coffee crop, one of the best in many years, at $300,000 and the loss of the sugar crop almost as heavy although hope was entertained that some of the cane flattened by the wind would recover. It was believed that the total damages would far exceed $1,000,000.

Suburbs of San Juan were still without power and flooded, early today.

A tornado in the United States and a hurricane in Porto Rico, have claimed heavy toll of life and property during the last few days.

Beautiful San Juan, Porto Rico, is a city of sadness following the hurricane which killed scores, injured hundreds and made thousands homeless. The map above shows the progress of the twister. At the left above is a street scene in San Juan, center above, a panorama of the city, bottom left, above the Presbyterian Hospital demolished by the storm and right, famous Casa Blanca, once the home of Ponce de Leon.

The picture below shows ruins of the Rockford Cabinet Co., Rockford, Ill., where more than 100 men were trapped when a tornado wrecked the building, smashing the roof and third floor down upon the second floor and entombing the workers in a tangled mass of concrete, timber and steel.

GIRL HITCH-HIKER ADMITS MURDER OF AKRON AUTO DRIVER

Shot In Defense Says
Girl Held For Slay - ing.

AKRON, O., Sept. 17.—Loveday Boyle, the "hitch-hike" girl, who fatally wounded John McCormick to "prevent my being attacked," was held today in Franklin, Pa., while authorities were deciding what steps shall be taken against her.

McCormick was killed after he had given the girl a "lift" when he found her walking on a country road, near here. At the time, she was hiking from Oklahoma to Oil City.

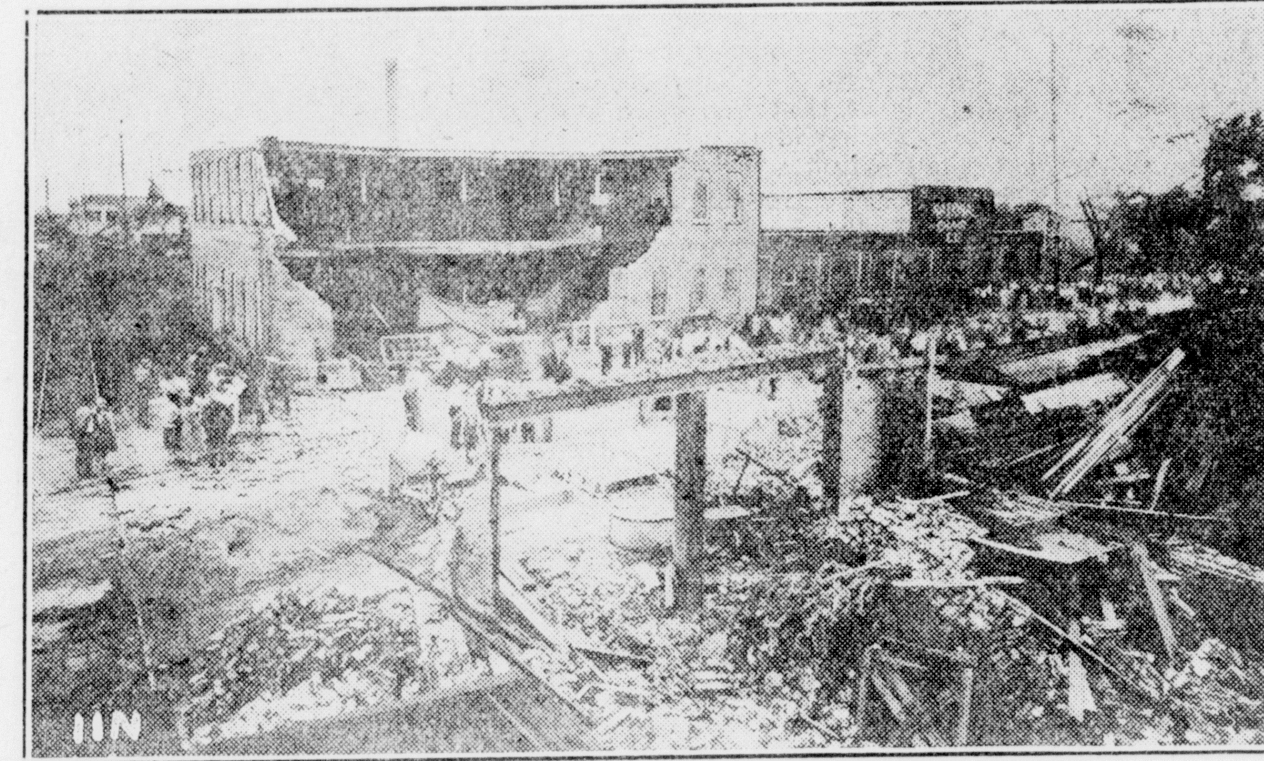

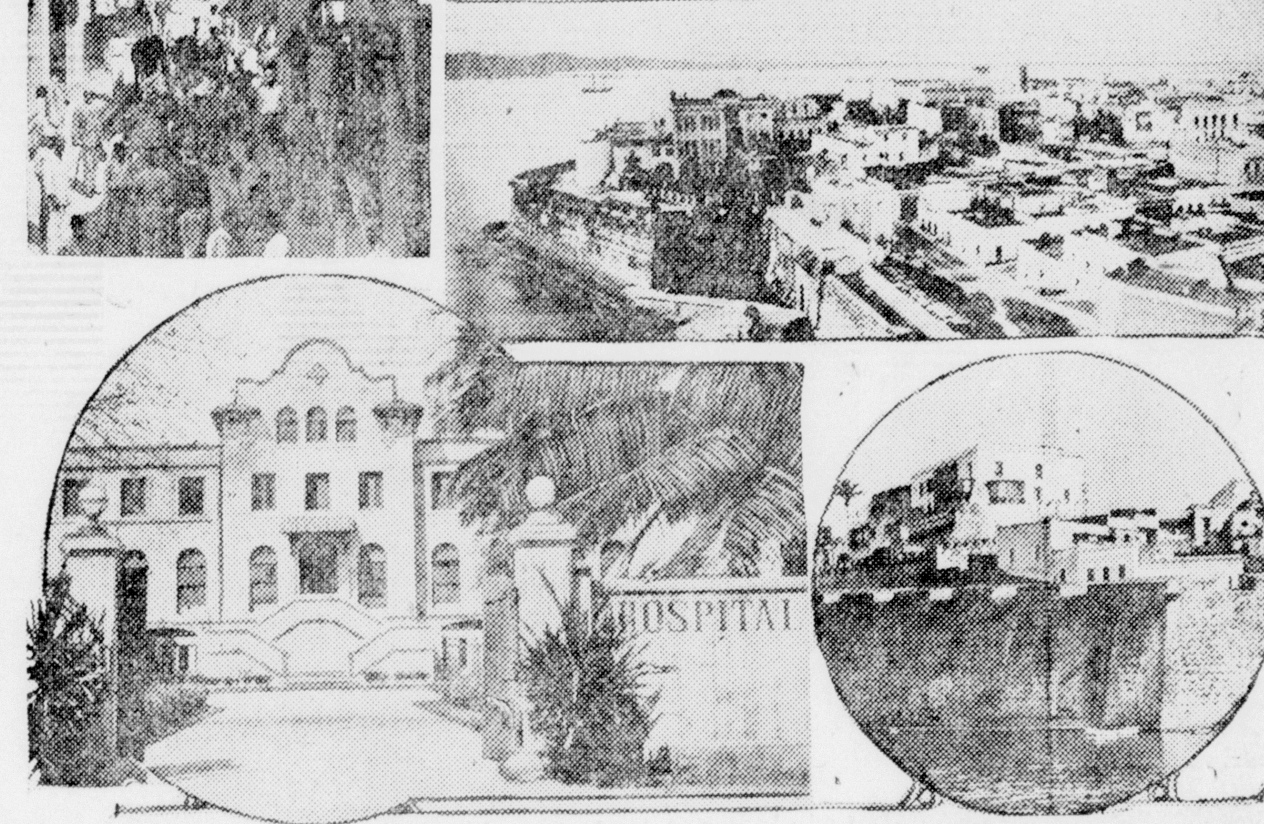

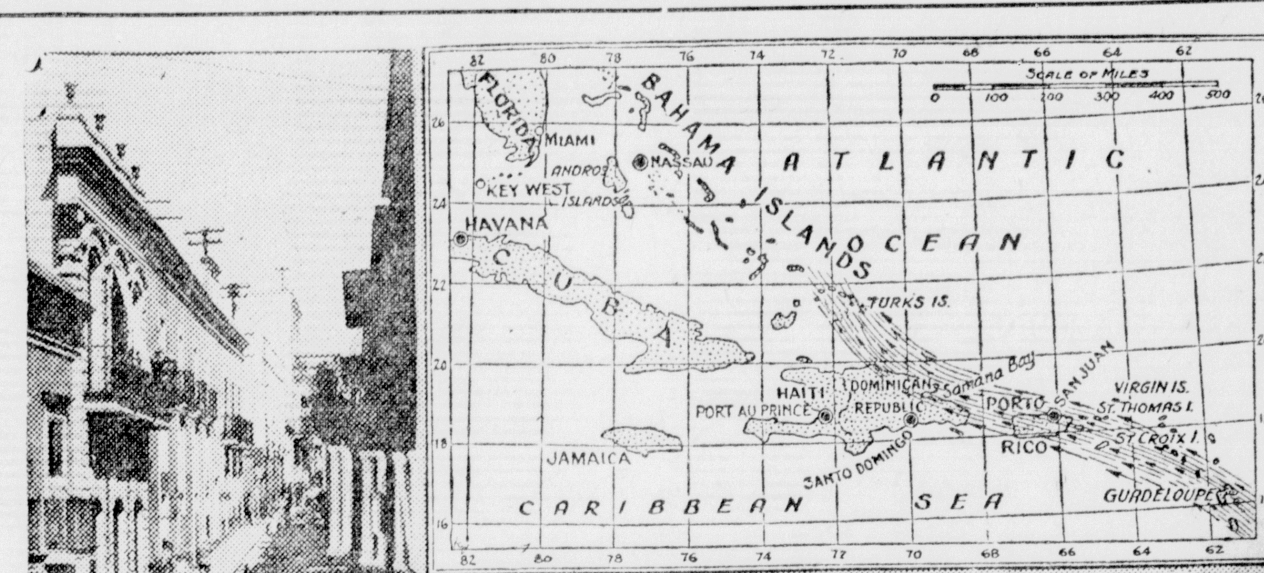

Miss Boyle, after being arrested in Oil City, told officers that she shot McCormick while resisting "his advances."

Assistant Prosecutor Virgil Rogers said today he was undecided what action will be taken against the girl, other than "bringing her back to Akron."

He said an extradition hearing will be held in Oil City, next Saturday, and that he expected the girl would be returned here.

TODAY'S CHUCKLE
JACKSON, Miss. Sept. 17.—An ordinance making mandatory for persons whose automobiles are wrecked to clean the streets of broken glass and other debris has been passed here.

TWO STORMS WREAK TOLL IN DEATH AND DAMAGE

FOUR PERISH WHEN COTTAGE IS DESTROYED BY FLAMES

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 17.—Four persons were killed when fire destroyed a summer cottage today at Britannia, eight miles west of here on the bay.

The dead included Miss Jean Agnes Lenihan, 22, of Syracuse, N. Y., and three children of Miss Lenihan's sister, Mrs. Joseph Waters.

The children were George, aged 4, Mary Edna, 9, and Austin Joseph, 7.

Mr. and Mrs. Waters, who owned the cottage, were not at home when the fire started from unknown origin shortly after midnight. They had left Miss Lenihan with the children.

HOOVER STARTS ON IMPORTANT SPEAKING TOUR THROUGH EAST

ABOARD SPECIAL HOOVER TRAIN ENROUTE TO NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 17.—Herbert Hoover set out today on a two-day trip through industrial northern New Jersey, opening his speaking campaign in the east.

With Mrs. Hoover and their son Alan, he left Washington at 8:30 a. m., today in a private car attached to a four-car special train, bound for the New Jersey "battleground."

In an address at Newark tonight he will lay down his campaign promises to labor, and during today and tomorrow he plans to motor through half a dozen New Jersey towns, seeing perhaps half a million people.

It is a tremendously important trip for the Republican presidential nominee as it will bring him close to New York City, the home town and stronghold of his Democratic opponent Gov. Alfred E. Smith.

His speech will be the first he has made east of Iowa since his nomination. It will also mark the first of the series of four campaign speeches he intends to deliver before he starts west the latter part of October to vote.

Smith, and to a spot where the prohibition issue is probably strongest.

SADDLE BAGS TO BE EXEMPT

Lawyers Propose To Repeal Obsolete
Laws

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., Sept. 17.—An attempt at repeal of Ohio laws requiring trains to stop at crossings and exempting spinning wheels from taxes and doctors' saddle bags from levies, will be made at the next session of the legislature, members of the legislative committee of the Ohio Bar Association decided here.

They also pledged themselves to work for repeal of 100 other obsolete laws.

Mrs. Sarah Hedrick, of Cleveland, chairman of the women's welfare committee of the association, proposed a bill to legitimize children born out of wedlock.

Sam Iddings of Dayton recommended a law requiring licenses for airplane pilots and James A. White, former superintendent of the Ohio Anti-Saloon League recommended elimination of the justice-of-the-peace courts.

The jury system was attacked by former U. S. Senator Atlee Pomerene. He referred to the Teapot Dome prosecution, which he directed, and blamed business men of the country for their unwillingness to serve on juries.

John A. Elden of Cleveland, president of the Ohio State Bar Association, presided at the meeting. Other speeches were made by Judge Florence E. Allen of the Ohio Supreme Court and Judge Robert H. Day of Massillon.

LABOR LEADERS AND UNION DELEGATES
MEET IN COLUMBUS

Convention Not To Take
Sides In Political
Fight.

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 17.—Labor leaders and delegates from local unions throughout Ohio gathered in Columbus today for their forty-fifth annual convention.

Members of the credentials committee—Harry Rausse, Cleveland, chairman; T. J. Creager, Springfield, N. Y., and H. W. Buzzard, Dayton—met last night. They reported more credentials sent in than for any convention in recent years.

Creager, a veteran leader in labor circles, was present when the state federation was organized forty-five years ago and has never missed a convention. When the federation was organized, he represented the Springfield Typographical Union. Creager has served as secretary of the Springfield Central Labor Union thirty years.

Addresses of welcome and preliminary reports were to be made at the opening session today.

Although political activities were expected to come back before the convention, the federation was not expected to take any action which would pledge itself to any candidate.

The Ohio Federation of Barbers yesterday held a preliminary meeting to today's sessions. Sixty-two barbers attended the meeting.

Federation officers were re-elected. They were: H. Oberdeen, Chillicothe, president; A. Sheets, Cincinnati, vice president; E. R. Legg, Hamilton, Paul Flavin, Portsmouth, W. F. Bailey, Akron, and W. F. Long, Mansfield, vice presidents; and George E. McKenna, Springfield, secretary.

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Sept. 17.—Yachts in the Halifax River were being battered to pieces today by high winds and lashing seas, as the edge of the hurricane struck this city. Owners looked on helplessly.

A Florida East Coast Railway passenger train due here at 5:30 a. m. was long overdue. Railroad officials believed it was marooned somewhere in the hurricane stricken district to the south.

The number of passengers on the train was unknown.

At 8:30 a. m. winds from the southeast were increasing in force. The barometer reading here at 8:30 a. m. was 29.25, the lowest in years.

Two houses on Ocean Boulevard were blown down, but no one was reported injured.

TAMPA, Fla., Sept. 17.—Reports to the Gulf radio station from Miami today said that comparatively little damage had been done there by the hurricane.

Dawn broke dreary here. A heavy rain was falling. The barometer reading was 29.08 at 5:15 a. m. At Tarpon Springs the reading was 29.38 and falling. St. Petersburg reported 29.22 and a 40 mile an hour wind.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—The United Press radio station at Garden City, Long Island, received the following message from amateur station 4AFL at Tampa, Fla., at 4:50 a. m.:

"Raging gale blowing my house until it is shaking like a leaf. No one has been reported killed or injured, but the storm seems to be still mounting. I will try to get further reports and keep you informed. I cannot get in touch with any other radio station in Florida. I am badly scared."

PLANE IS FOUND

MOSCOW, Sept. 17.—The missing airplane, Soviets Ever, was damaged by a storm and forced down in the ice fields while on a northern Siberia exploration trip, it was announced today.

The crew was saved and reached Uelen, Siberia, safely.

STORY STARTS TOMORROW

Beatrice Burton, Popular Author, Presents "The Little Yellow House."

"The Little Yellow House," latest of the famous list of stories by Beatrice Burton, famed serial writer, promises to be one of the most popular of her stories when it starts in THE GAZETTE tomorrow.

Miss Burton's mother was the inspiration for the story but in it she has written a composite of all the mothers of the world finding the writing easy because she made it a picture of true life, drawn from her girlhood experiences with her mother and the women of the neighborhood in which she lived.

Probably Miss Burton is the most popular author whose stories have been used in this paper. Certain it is about to expire call Main 800, Xenia and the circulation manager will see that you miss none of the papers carrying "The Little Yellow House."

REPORT SIXTEEN
KILLED IN WRECK

MANILA, P. I., Sept. 17.—Sixteen persons were killed and fifteen others injured today when a log train was derailed at Cadiz, in the province of Occidental Negros.

Men riding on top of the logs were thrown off when the train hit a curve at high speed.

STORM LEAVES TOLL OF 100 DEAD AT PORTO RICO; ROARS INLAND

MIAMI NOT HIT BY HURRICANE ALONG COAST

Terror Stricken Citizens
Escape Force Of Storm.

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 17.—Miami, having escaped the full force of the second hurricane that had ravaged this state in the last two years, turned anxious eyes to the west and north today where the storm was reported raging toward Tampa and the Gulf of Mexico.

This city, which was the chief sufferer in the 1926 storm, caught only the fringe of the present gale and escaped with a few smashed awnings. The United States weather bureau reported that the highest velocity the wind attained was forty-eight miles an hour.

The hurricane swept through the Jupiter Inlet and landed with its full force on the twin cities of Palm Beach and West Palm Beach, where heavy damage was reported.

Advices today said that the gale was proceeding with diminishing force across Lake Okeechobee toward Tampa and was destined to lose its fury in the Gulf of Mexico.

Miami Red Cross headquarters received an emergency call for nurses and physicians to be sent to West Palm Beach. No deaths have been reported yet, but several persons were said to have been injured.

Terror-stricken residents, remembering the power of the 1926 hurricane which took more than 400 lives and left $125,000,000 property damage, fled to storm cellars when the high wind started. Today they emerged, relieved when the news got about that no lives had been lost in the city.

Senator Joseph T. Robinson, Democratic nominee for vice president, who arrived here in a private car on a campaign tour, offered the use of the car for relief work.

Robinson said he would abandon all campaign plans pending the outcome of the hurricane situation and would accompany the relief party wherever it chose to go.

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Sept. 17.—The high wind beating on this city veered from the northeast to the southeast today and increased in velocity to around sixty miles an hour.

Trees were uprooted, roofs damaged, signboards demolished and plate glass windows smashed.

No casualties had been reported at an early hour.

The Halifax River tide was at record height. The gale blew the crested water into the main thoroughfare of the city.

RED CROSS APPEALS FOR DONATIONS FOR HURRICANE RELIEF

Vast Sums Needed Headquarters Of Agency
Says.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—The American Red Cross sent telegrams to its 3,500 chapters in the United States asking redoubled efforts to raise a large relief fund for Porto Rico and other hurricane-stricken islands.

The telegrams said that latest word showed the Porto Rico disaster even worse than at first feared and that vast sums would be needed to furnish not only temporary relief but later rehabilitation of the victims.

George S. Smith of the national Red Cross staff, arrived in New York today and began buying supplies to load onto a ship for immediate dispatch to Porto Rico, he informed headquarters. He is working in conjunction with the army quartermaster department there.

It was announced the U. S. S. Bridge, a navy store ship, will carry the $80,000 worth of supplies being bought by Smith. It moved from the Brooklyn Navy yards to the navy supply base today to take on the stores.

Chairman John Barton Payne, of the Red Cross, Assistant Secretary of War Robbins, and Major General Summerall, army chief of staff, reported to President Coolidge today the latest word of condition in Porto Rico.

KIDNAPED MINING ENGINEER IS FREED

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—E. J. Bumsted, kidnaped American mining engineer, has been released by Mexican bandits, according to apparently reliable information received at the state department today.

STORMS RAVAGE NORTH AMERICA

Storms continued to ravage the North American continent today, adding to the terror and destruction that has been mounting steadily since Thursday.

The tropical hurricane, which struck Porto Rico and went north-westward through the Jupiter Inlet of the Bahamas, raged north-westward across Florida, spreading destruction along America's winter playground.

Porto Rico, re-establishing contact with the world, sent out reports that 100 persons were known to have lost their lives as a result of the hurricane and that the death toll was expected to mount considerably after receipt of reports from the interior of the island.

Property damage was conservatively estimated at $50,000,000.

In Rockford, Ill., the death toll had reached eleven. Town officials were laying plans for rehabilitation work.

Twelve cities in Nebraska and South Dakota began to build out of their ruins.

Relief experts were on their way to Jacksonville, Fla., and the Red Cross was sending a unit to Porto Rico to aid the stricken.

EAST COAST CITIES CUT OFF AS TEMPEST WREAKS DESTRUCTION

Death Toll In Path Of Storm On Mainland Unknown; West Palm Beach In Path Of Twister.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Sept. 17.—A great hurricane from out of the Indies dealt destruction and possibly death to the Florida peninsula today.

South of Daytona on the east coast, towns and cities including West Palm Beach, were cut off.

The tempest was believed roaring inland. Its fury of winds cut off house tops, laid low communication systems, and caused suffering and perhaps death.

For hours there had been no authentic word of what had occurred in a fifty mile belt near West Palm Beach, which before the winter influx of visitors is a city of 22,000.

The United Press correspondent at Titusville early today telephoned that a screaming wind of perhaps 100 miles an hour velocity was rocking houses there.

Then the line went out.

Titusville is 150 miles north of Palm Beach.

Inland at Orlando houses rocked in the tempest. The storm cut down everything in its path.

Communication lines were generally out. Public utilities were crippled. Scores of towns and cities on the edge of the storm's path were in darkness last night.

Before wires to West Palm Beach failed, reports came of house tops sailing through the air, trees pulled up like grass and seas thirty-five to forty feet high pounding on the shore.

What was happening to human lives remained temporarily a matter of conjecture.

Red Cross and American Legion units mobilized for relief work at Miami, Jacksonville and Tampa.

Tampa, with its population of 52,000 was under a severe strain today. The hurricane had caused the barometer to drop with rapidity, as it in fact did, all over the peninsula. At 5 o'clock it was 29.16, a reading the board of trade announced as the lowest on record.

A molten stream of cars passed northward through Jacksonville today as residents of cautious nature moved out of the state to escape hurricane hazards.

At Daytona during the night, the main highway was clogged with traffic—bound for Georgia or further north.

The American Telephone and Telegraph company reported early today that a 100 mile wind was raging at Palm Beach. The company's wires to points along the east coast went out, one by one. Repair crews were made ready to invade the hurricane ridden zone.

Western Union and Postal Telegraph wires were also reported all down in the area.

The hurricane struck the coast yesterday centering near Jupiter.

JAWARSKI NEARING DEATH AS OFFICERS CONTINUE INQUIRY

Bandit Pleads To Be Killed; Find Hide-Out.

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 17.—New clues to the activities of Paul Jawarski, alleged notorious Pittsburgher who for killing a policeman, were discovered today, police announced.

While the officers continued their search into Jawarski's life the subject of their inquiry lay on a hospital bed, begging policemen, who guarded him, to end his life. Jawarski's condition continues to become worse, doctors said.

He was shot in a gunfight with police last Thursday and in turn he killed one policeman, wounded another, and shot a civilian.

Police said today they had discovered the hide-out which Jawarski used here. They said they found two repeating shotguns, an automatic rifle, eight pistols, and a complete supply of ammunition.

Two caps, with the visors slit at the top so they could be pulled down to form masks also were found, the officers said.

What Will you do

When your Children Cry for It

There is hardly a household that hasn't heard of Castoria! At least five million homes are never without it. If there are children in your family, there's almost no time of their comfort. And any night may find you very thankful there's a bottle in the house. Just a few drops, and that colic or constipation is relieved; or diarrhea checked. A vegetable product; a baby remedy meant for young folks. Castoria is about the only thing you have ever heard doctors advise giving infants. Stronger medicines are dangerous to a tiny baby, however harmless they may be to grown-ups. Good old Castoria! Remember the name, and be ready to buy it. It may spare you a sleepless, anxious night. It is always ready, always safe to use; in emergencies, or for everyday ailments. Any hour of the day or night that baby becomes fretful, or restless. Castoria was never more popular with mothers than it is today. Every druggist has it.

Mr. Homer Soddors, Xenia, had the third finger on his right hand badly crushed when he struck the member with a hammer, Monday morning.

Miss Lucille Chambliss, McClellan Hospital, Monday and Tuesday, underwent a serious operation Tuesday morning.

County Treasurer Helen Dadds has returned to her office after being confined to her home on W. Third St., several days with grip.

Mr. and Mrs. V. E. Seibert and twin sons, of Columbus, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. V. L. Fairies. Mr. Seibert formerly taught in Central High School.

Four generations helped Mrs. Thomas Franks enjoy her seventy-seventh anniversary with a birthday dinner at her home, 15 Race St., Sunday. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Franks, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Franks and daughter, Susie; Mr. Archie Franks, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Reese and son, Kenneth; Mrs. Francis Reese and Mr. and Mrs. Bert Moore and daughters, Eleanor and Elsie; Mr. and Mrs. Ray Franks of Cincinnati; Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Hammer, Dayton; Mrs. Mae Myers and daughter, Vera Elaine of Dayton and Mrs. Gerald C. Plessinger and daughter, Patricia Louise of Washington, D. C.

Miss Irene Parrett, W. Third St., left Monday morning for Oxford, O., to enter her senior year at Western College for Women.

Mr. William Graham, left Monday morning for Athens, O., to resume his studies at Ohio University.

Mrs. Fred Fisher is entertaining her card club at her home on W. Second St., Thursday.

William Clemans left Sunday for Oxford, O., to enter Miami University for the fall term.

RELATIVES FAIL TO HEAR FROM XENIANS

Reports of the terrific hurricane that struck the Florida coast Sunday, have aroused anxiety among Xenia relatives of Mr. and Mrs. J. Kenneth Williamson and family, who reside in West Palm Beach, Fla. Relatives have received no word from the former Xenians since the storm.

It is thought, since communication has been cut off by the southern storm, that they were unable to send word north.

Miss Fletcher left Xenia last week for West Palm Beach and Mrs. Williamson just returned there after a visit here and in the east.

CHILD RIDES PLANE TO CURE DEAFNESS

TOLEDO, O., Sept. 17.—Four-year-old Bobby Harris was watched closely today for indications that a 7,000-foot airplane dive which he took Saturday would result in curing his deafness.

Mr. and Mrs. Garfield J. Harris authorized the experiment in an attempt to remedy their son's defective hearing.

A second airplane treatment will be given Bobby if it should develop that the first trip benefited him, Mrs. Harris said today.

Poems that Live

THE FATHERLAND
WHERE is the true man's fatherland?

Is it where he by chance is born?
Doth not the yearning spirit scorn

In such scant borders to be spanned?
Oh, yes! his fatherland must be
As the blue heaven wide and free!

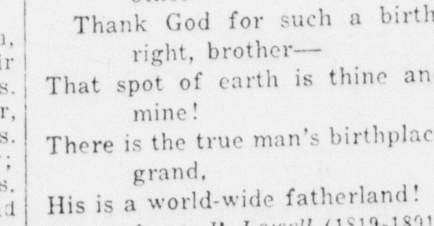

Is it alone where freedom is,
Where God is God and man is man?
Doth he not claim a broader span

For the soul's love of home than this?
Oh, yes! his fatherland must be
As the blue heaven wide and free!

Where'er a human heart doth wear
Joy's myrtle-wreath or sorrow's gyves,
Where'er a human spirit strives
After a life more true and fair,
There is the true man's birthplace grand,
His is a world-wide fatherland!

Where'er a single slave doth pine,
Where'er one man may help another—
Thank God for such a birth-right, brother—
That spot of earth is thine and mine!

There is the true man's birthplace grand,
His is a world-wide fatherland!

ROCKFORD TORNADO TOLL INCREASED TO FOURTEEN MONDAY

ROCKFORD, Ill., Sept. 17.—Death toll of the tornado which swept the northeast industrial section of Rockford Friday, mounted to fourteen today, with the recovery of three bodies from the ruins of the Rockford Chair and Furniture Company factory.

Beneath the pile of brick, stone and twisted steel, workmen found the bodies of Frank Strom, 34, Gunnar Rydin, 29, and August J. Peterson. Recovery of these three bodies accounted for the number missing in the tornado. The bodies of Herman Wydel, 47, Martin Anderson, 34, and Olaf Larsen, 27, were taken from the ruins last night.

Recapitulation showed that eight men lost their lives in factory B of the furniture plant, two in the Union furniture factory, three were killed by a flying roof and the fourteenth, a farm hand, was killed by flying timber.

City authorities announced today no aid had been necessary to carry out reconstruction.

Officials conferred with bankers and tentatively agreed upon a plan of financing reconstruction work.

CURTIS WILL SPEAK AT INDIANA MEET

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Sept. 17.—Senator Charles Curtis, running-mate of Herbert Hoover, shifted his campaign today from the doubtful border state, Kentucky, to this normally Republican stronghold, Indiana.

A pullman car reserved for his use arrived here from Louisville at 2 a. m.

He planned to make another farm relief speech tonight but announced no subject for his banter address. All state Republican nominees and officials were invited to the noon affair.

Curtis was optimistic over the Republican prospects in Kentucky after his two day visit there. Republican leaders there told him the blue grass state would give Hoover and him a majority of at least 50,000 next November.

SUITOR STABBED BY JEALOUS RIVAL

CLEVELAND, Sept. 17.—Robert Adams, 22, was near death here today from knife wounds inflicted by a rival suitor, according to police. Adams was calling on Sylvia West, last night when the rival appeared, police said. Miss West refused admission. He climbed up to a rear porch and gained entrance to the upstairs.

There, police said, he attacked the girl, cutting her on the arm. Adams ran to her rescue. He was cut over the heart twice and slashed on arms and hand.

FIND WOMAN'S BODY; MURDERER SOUGHT

OTTAWA, O., Sept. 17.—Sheriff Clinton Felkey today redoubled efforts to find the body of Mrs. Mary Hemler, 19, murdered in her home at East Gibboa, a week ago. One man was held but no charges have been filed against him. He denied knowledge of the slaying, Sheriff Felkey said.

Mrs. Hemler's body was found in the Blanchard River Wednesday. Her neck had been broken.

AUTO IS RECOVERED

Sheriff Ohmer Tate is seeking to identify ownership of a Hudson coach, believed by him to have been abandoned on E. Main St. in front of the Smith Advertising Co., where it was parked all day Sunday. Sheriff Tate, who took charge of the car, declared the gasoline tank was empty. The machine bore a dealer's license and authorities expect to trace its owner through the license bureau at Columbus, O.

INSPECTED SEED
Thirty-one wheat growers in nineteen Ohio counties, had for sale registered or certified seed wheat from this year's crop, on September 5, according to an announcement of the Ohio Seed Improvement Association, which has inspected the seed for registry and certification. This list included the names of men who had submitted threshed samples for examination, as well as having had their wheat inspected in the field. The varieties and grades offered include registered Trumbull from five growers, certified Trumbull from eight growers, registered Pulbio from four growers, certified Rudy from two growers.

The counties in which the wheat was grown are Auglaize, Clark, Erie, Marion, Wayne, Huron, Henry, Lucas, Mercer, Ross, Seneca, Summit, Ashland, Brown, Hamilton, Mahoning, Medina, Shelby, and Washington.

Prices on the registered seed, according to information reaching the officers of the association, range from $2 to $2.75 a bushel on the registered seed, and $1.75 to $2.25 a bushel on the certified seed. The prices are fixed not by the association but by the growers of the seed, and depend upon the local demand and supply, the reputation of the grower, and the sales methods which he uses in disposing of his stock.

CITY SCHOOL ENROLLMENT HAS REACHED 1,896 IS ESTIMATED

Enrollment in the Xenia public schools for the first semester is placed at 1,896 by City School Superintendent Louis Hammerle.

This is a conservative estimate, according to Superintendent Hammerle, who declares that this number has since been increased slightly.

There are 235 pupils enrolled in the first grade, more than in any other grade in the city.

Following is the enrollment by grades: First, 235; second, 229; third, 197; fourth, 165; fifth, 145; sixth, 182; seventh, 137; eighth, 140; ninth, 149; tenth, 118; eleventh, ninety-eight; twelfth, eighty-two.

The Lincoln grade school enrollment is placed at 249; East High School building, 140; Central High School building, 632; McKinley grade building, 594; Spring Hill grade school, 272, and Orient Hill grade school, seventy-nine.

Superintendent Hammerle points out that the lower grades especially are greatly overcrowded, a condition which exists due to inadequate funds to provide a sufficient number of teachers.

Enrollment by grades in the various school buildings follows: Lincoln grade school: First, thirty-three; second, fifty-seven; third, forty-six; fourth, forty-five; fifth, thirty-two; sixth, forty-six; special grade ten.

East High School: Seventh, twenty-nine; eighth, thirty-five; ninth, twenty-six; tenth, nineteen; eleventh, seventeen; twelfth, fourteen.

Central High School: First, forty-eight; seventh, 108; eighth, 105; ninth, 123; tenth, ninety-nine; eleventh, eighty-one; twelfth, sixty-eight.

McKinley grade school: First, seventy-six; second, ninety-four; third, eighty-nine; fourth, seventy;

ENJOY MEETINGS OF COUNTY OFFICIALS

Miss Helen Dadds, county treasurer, H. M. Van Pelt and Miss Florence Swan, deputies, attended sessions of the State County Treasurers' Association in Dayton, Thursday and Friday.

The first day's sessions were devoted to business and Friday the delegates were taken on a sight-seeing tour of Dayton industrial plants. Luncheon was served at the Frigidaire plant and dinner at the National Cash Register Co. An informal party was held Friday evening. Addresses were given by Senator S. D. Fess and Ed Ellis, chief deputy to Auditor J. T. Tracy. The next convention will be held at Port Clinton, O.

NO APPOINTMENT TO POSITION IS MADE

No action has been taken by the executive board of the Greene County Farm Bureau regarding the appointment of a successor to J. R. Kimmer, county extension agent, who resigned, effective October 1. Several logical people for the position are being considered but no overtures have been made by the local officers. It is expected that a called meeting of the board will be held soon in regard to the appointment.

Texas Judge Sitting In New York Not Approached By Bootleggers

Judge William H. Atwell

By RUBY WEIL
Staff Writer for Central Press and The Gazette

XENIA, Sept. 17.—If the prohibition law is being violated in New York—and there are those who hint that it is—Federal Judge William H. Atwell, of Dallas, Tex., who sat in federal district court in Brooklyn several weeks, had no personal evidence of the fact.

And it might club hostesses are want to flout Mr. Volstead's dictum. Judge William H. Atwell has no personal knowledge of the fact.

"I have not seen one night club or one speakeasy since I have been in New York," declares the judge. "I have not been approached by a single bootlegger," he adds.

There are those who, reading the judge's statement, might suggest that it results from the fact that justice is blind. There are others who will see in Judge Atwell's contention that bootleggers and speakeasies are not the cause, but the result of violation of the liquor law. Or, as he puts it: "Bootleggers are not the crop of the prohibition law, but the harvest of the crop of lawbreakers."

Attitude Toward Prohibition Judge Atwell, who came to Brooklyn during his vacation to help clear an overcrowded docket, was anti-prohibitionist in principle and action before the passage of the Eighteenth amendment. But since the country became nominally dry, the judge has not taken a drink, either here or abroad, he avers. As a judge, he feels he cannot off the bench, nullify a law for whose violation he has sent men to prison. As an American, he feels he must not break any law which the will of a majority of his fellowmen has placed on the statute books.

He has little use for those who break the prohibition law and then argue that it cannot be enforced. This he terms "illogical."

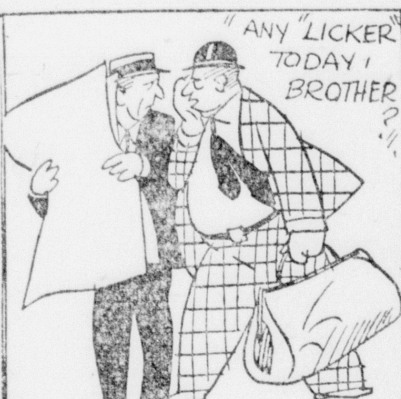

He does not care to discuss the raids conducted on the night clubs of whose existence he has no personal knowledge. A judge's place, he explains, is simply to act on those cases brought before him, and to see that they are fairly tried, and not to "clean up."

One reason Judge Atwell evades discussion of prohibition—save very generally—is because he feels that the bitterness engendered by this question, particularly in New York, makes fair treatment impossible. "You cannot have justice when each side questions the motives of the other," he declares.

"Then how," the judge was asked, "is it possible to obtain a jury to give a fair trial in a prohibition case?"

Faith in Juries The answer to this question, in Judge Atwell's court, is his method of selecting juries.

Out of his years of experience

"ANY LICKER TODAY, BROTHER?"

"I HAVE NOT BEEN APPROACHED BY A SINGLE BOOTLEGGER SINCE I HAVE BEEN IN NEW YORK."

"I CANNOT NULLIFY A LAW FOR WHOM I HAVE SENT MEN TO PRISON."

SCHOOLING ODDLY PLANNED FOR YOUNG EMPEROR OF ANNAM

PARIS, Sept. 17.—A special regime has been instituted for the education of the 14-year-old Emperor of Annam, His Majesty Bao Dai, who is completing his schooling in Paris and French resorts before assuming his hereditary rights in France's distant possession.

Bao Dai does not have to sit at the ordinary school-room desk of other pupils. Instead, he has a modern office building in his private apartment. All of his lessons are taken privately, professors selected by the government supplementing those of the Lycee Condorcet in daily visits to the youthful ruler.

There is a special "preceptor," who must not only report weekly to the government, but also to the boy's relatives. Bao Dai may wish to play football with his fellow students, whom he sees only when they happen to pass beneath his windows on their way home, but "protocol" must be observed.

His only compensation is that he does not have to write out his "home work." Occasional verbal examinations are sufficient. When he becomes Emperor of Annam he will have a whole staff of professors at his disposal to solve any important problems.

On the other hand, he does not have the satisfaction of French schoolboys, for there is no public presentation of "prizes"—usually volumes of inspiring philosophy or Jules Verne's tales—the imperial crown of Annam being considered sufficient reward for any degree of precocity.

Fond of Arithmetic

On the records of the Lycee Condorcet, which will eventually give him a diploma, Bao Dai appears as "Vinh Thuy." He is said to be especially fond of arithmetic, but has considerable difficulty handling the French tongue. His favorite tutor is former Governor Charles of Indochina, who will probably return with him to Annam as an official counselor.

In another aristocratic boom or high school is registered Si Hidyra Hulla, the eldest son of the King of Afghanistan. He follows the lectures, however, like any French boy. "He's just one of us," is the compliment his schoolmates pay him. They admit that they envy his ability to master Latin, for despite only three years of study he is several books ahead of most of his classmates.

Paris is also educating the son of the president of Afghanistan's Council of State, but a chronic Mohammedan, who is now 19 years old, does not care for classics. His bent is for physics and algebra, and during the last semester he won several first prizes for his proficiency.

PROFESSOR HEARD AT UNION SERVICE

Prof. H. F. Dean, new singing instructor at Antioch College, Yellow Springs, sang a solo "Elijah's Prayer," at the last union service of the season at First U. P. Church, Sunday evening.

Prof. Dean, formerly sang at Christ Episcopal Church, Dayton. His singing was well appreciated by the large audience that attended the meeting. The Rev. D. A. Sellers of First Reformed Church, preached.

The individual churches of the city will resume their services next Sunday.

EAST END NEWS

Mr. and Mrs. Mason and Mr. Lindsey in company with Mr. Walter Steel of Dayton, were Sunday visitors of Mrs. Marie Stevens, E. Second St.

The Rev. W. C. Allen, pastor of Middle Run Baptist Church and members of the church choir were guests of the Rev. Mr. Murdoch and congregation of Ross Chapel A. M. E. Church, Jamestown, Sunday afternoon. The Rev. Mr. Allen preached a strong sermon.

Mrs. Charles Churchill of Louisville, Ky., is the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Mathews, E. Church St.

The Ellice Carter W. C. T. U. will hold its regular meeting Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home of Miss L. J. Payne, E. Market St. The Edith Randolph Prayer Circle will meet at the County Infirmary Tuesday in regular service. Members leave on the two o'clock traction car.

Mr. and Mrs. John Roark of Dayton, were visitors of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Wright, E. Market St., Sunday.

Mrs. Fannie Hartel of Knoxville, Tenn., is the guest of relatives and friends here.

CHAPTER LIII

Oh, God in Heaven! His child! Their child! Lying in there—dying—dying. Nothing could save it. Back in the operating room, an anesthetic and a nurse were doing all they could. Ballard, in Gethsemane, bent over the boy with the tousled hair and the blue-gray eyes, and waited.

"Are you ill, Dr. Riley?" The nurse looked at him, concerned. "You look so pale yourself."

"No." His voice was strained. "I am quite all right."

Suddenly Denny opened his eyes—slowly—painfully, and Ballard bent over him with his ear near his lips. He was going to try to speak.

"Mam-ma—I want my pretty mam-ma."

Ballard could hear no more. He stumbled into the next room, and, burying his head in his hands, sobbed great sobs that shook his body.

Lotus had told him Janet was in Cleveland. She would be home on the eight o'clock train. Three hours! He might live that long—but not much more.

His boy! His little boy! Why, he even had his brown, wavy hair and blue eyes. His boy even looked like him—and he had never known.

When he thought of Janet's suffering—her bravery—another sob would shake him. She had promised to be a good sport—to never bother him. Oh, God, she had kept her word!

It only he could die instead of the beautiful boy lying in there. Poor little Janet! He found himself praying to God to give him the power to give back their boy's life. But he knew he was powerless. The injuries were internal—fatal.

Ballard counted the minutes, and they seemed like hours. He told Lotus there was nothing to do but wait for the end, and she had fainted again. The shock was so great that a nurse had been assigned to put her in a room and look after her.

Ballard dismissed the nurse for a while. He wanted to be alone with his boy. With the little life that was ebbing so swiftly. He wanted to be there—alone—when Janet came.

Eight twenty; eight twenty-five! The door opened slowly, and Janet stumbled in. Her face was haggard and her eyes wild. With a little scream she ran to the bed and fell down on her knees.

"God, oh, God, dear God, be merciful. Give him back."

Then she got up slowly and beat to look into the little face. Ballard could not speak. He stood at her side, his arm around her, but she did not seem to see him.

"My—my baby. He will die." Suddenly she looked up, searching the face of the man beside her for a ray of hope. Her hand went to her heart and her face went pale.

"Ballard!" With a little sob she fell into his arms and he held her so for a moment, trying to find his voice.

"This—this is my hospital—that is how I happen to be here."

"Oh, thank God." There were tears of relief coming into the red-brown eyes. "You—you will save him—for me. I know you can save him. You wouldn't let my baby die."

His voice was scarcely audible. "My darling—my Janet, I would gladly give my own life to save him. But there is no power on earth."

He was calling her darling—his Janet—his wife. Even in the face of her grief, the words burned into her heart. Ballard loved her—loved her—his arms were crushing her as though he could never let her go. "I have searched everywhere for you."

Mrs. Carter Van Arden sat in her box at the Metropolitan opera. A young smile played about her lips. She scarcely saw the beautifully dressed women and faultlessly groomed men who sat around her. Her mind was traveling back to a trip on the train a few years before.

There had been a little girl in a saucy red hat who fidgeted and squirmed and held her knees to keep them from shaking because she was on her way to Broadway. A little girl who "thrived on sin" because she was a minister's daughter, and who wanted to stay "right in the heart of the great White Way."

She smiled and waited, impatiently. The Metropolitan's twenty-four-year-old prima donna was to make her debut. An American girl who had never been to Europe. A little Pittsburgh girl—an unknown.

Then Mrs. Carter Van Arden laughed.

How soon Broadway could forget! And how fortunate in this case! They had not recognized the girl from her pictures. But that was not so very strange. She did not look like the same girl, with her hair in a soft marcel and the deep, sad eyes that seemed to burn in her white face.

In her dressing room, Mrs. Ballard Riley, with her head on her husband's shoulder and her lips buried in her cool black hair, was waiting for the curtain to rise. She was a little trembly with excitement. And she held to him tightly for comfort.

"Ballard, do you love me?" She looked, questioningly, into the blue eyes that seemed to shine into her face.

"Well, now, Mrs. Riley, I'll tell you more about that when I get you home." He kissed her, laughing.

The red-brown eyes clouded. "Oh, my darling, are you sure you didn't just marry me because you felt sorry for me? You hated marriage so."

He crushed her to him, and the beating of his heart was like a little hammer against her breast. "Oh, my dearest, don't ever say such a thing again! I couldn't live without you. What made you think of such a silly thing, now?"

"I have thought about it—often. It just comes to my mind—"

He shook his head hopelessly and smiled, the adorable, crooked little grin that she loved.

"Darling, your heart and my heart both had to be broken before we could realize that this old world was all about. Can't you see

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 17.—In the motion picture colony only a few weeks, Texas Guinan, New York's leading night club hostess, has regained the popularity she held years ago when she was doing the heroine stuff in the old-time western films.

On the Warner Bros. lot where she is making "The Queen of Night Clubs," in Hollywood's night clubs and on the boulevard, the familiar "Hello Tex," marks her appearance.

If there was any doubt about the way Miss Guinan would get along with modern Hollywood it was removed by the way in which she ures, usually found in New York, were working in various sound pictures on that lot.

During her stay here La Guinan is occupying Marie Prevost's former home.

Despite the official cold should r, Tex's return to Hollywood was something in the line of the "home boy makes good" serials.

When she bouded off a transcontinental train she was wearing enough jewelry to have shamed Peggy Hopkins Joyce.

When she left here after her wild west days she wasn't in poverty but certainly she couldn't have bought any of the ropes of pearls or the various diamond doodads she brought back with her.

passed over the frigid reception tendered her by city officials and civic bodies of Los Angeles.

She laughed again when she learned that the "affection dinner" in her honor had been called off because the Breakfast Club, where it was to be held, decided "unfavorable comment" might arise from renting its pavilion for a Texas Guinan whoopee.

"Some of those Breakfast Club boys might get out and try some of the good fresh air around here," was her first observation.

Later she made a joke of the whole affair by saying it was "the first time I ever gave a sucker an even break—and look what happened to me. I had to buy my own dinner."

Tex, under her present arrangement, will make only one picture. It will have a Vitaphone accompaniment.

Tex thought "they just transplanted Broadway" the first day she was at Warner Bros.

FAIRFIELD FLYER SERIOUSLY HURT IN FALL FROM WINDOW

Lieut. O. O. Niergarth, assistant executive officer at Wilbur Wright Field, Fairfield, was seriously injured when he fell five stories at the Oliver Hotel, South Bend, Ind., Sunday morning about 4:30 o'clock.

It is said that Lieut. Niergarth suffered from somnambulism and fell through an airshaft while walking in his sleep. His companion, Capt. Eugene E. Reinartz, flight surgeon and hotel attaches, found him lying on the roof of a two-story building, after his five-story fall. No bones were broken, examination showed, but he suffered serious internal hurts.

Lieut. Niergarth and Capt. Reinartz flew to South Bend, Saturday, to attend the second annual air meet of the St. Joseph Valley Aviation Club. They registered at the Oliver Hotel and were assigned to an inside room, on the fifth floor, with the window opening on the airshaft.

The aviator was removed to a South Bend hospital from the hotel. His wife and Lieut. C. C. Redmond, adjutant at Fairfield air depot, flew to South Bend Sunday, on receiving word of the accident.

Xenia Resident Describes How New Konjola Restored His Health After Short Treatment

Thousands of men and women in Xenia have been relieved of many of the worst forms of stomach, liver, kidney and bowel miseries through the use of this celebrated new Konjola medicine, and thousands of others in this city are still suffering from these ailments, but every day more and more of these same sufferers are turning to Konjola for relief. Hundreds of statements have been published, many from this city, in which is told how Konjola restored a new state of health. Just a few days ago Mr. Ernest Kersey, 4 South Miller Avenue, Xenia, made the following statement to the Konjola Man at the Gallaher Drug Store, 33 East Main St., this city, where he is explaining the merits of Konjola:

"I will always recommend Konjola to anyone who is suffering," said Mr. Kersey, "because this medicine ended all trace of stomach and kidney trouble for me."

"For over two years my stomach and kidneys had caused me intense suffering. My kidneys were in a very bad state and each action showed traces of sugar and a yellowish-brown sediment. Due to the disordered condition of my stomach every bite of food formed gas that pressed against my heart. Quite often I became so dizzy that I fell to the floor. One day while in Sabina, Ohio, I fell twice to the street. My appetite left me and I had no desire to eat because of the suffering afterward. For more than six years I did not enjoy a complete night's sleep and always felt worn-out. You can better realize my condition when I say that I spent two years in Leeburg for two years in Leeburg, then I never knew what health was and thought I would go through the rest of my life in this condition."

"Just about this time I started on the treatment of Konjola and this medicine worked wonders on my system. In an amazing short time I noticed a new feeling of health over my entire system. I wouldn't think of missing a dose and soon had completed the entire treatment. Now I want to tell everyone that I have received permanent relief from my health troubles. I am able to eat all kinds of food without the least after effect. The gas bloating and dizzy spells are ended. It is a pleasure to sit down to a meal because I know that I will receive the proper nourishment. Konjola also regulated my kidneys and banished the unhealthy color and sediment. In every way I have been benefited and now sleep just like a child. It is a pleasure to endorse such a medicine as Konjola."

The Konjola Man is at the Gallaher Drug Store, 33 East Main St., Xenia, where he is daily meeting the public and introducing and explaining the merits of this medicine.

DERBY OR FEDORA? CLOTHES MAY AFFECT VOTE

HOOVER

ONE MORE VOTE FOR HERB

TAKING A STRAW VOTE

SMITH

By ALEXANDER C. HERMAN
Staff Writer for Central Press and The Gazette
NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—Brown

Derbies or Felt Fedoras? Snappy wing collars or sedate turn-overs? Suits of conservative cut, in quiet, solid colors, or cutaways and frocks in the latest mode, with stripes and plaids in new patterns?

These are some of the issues, aside from prohibition, farm relief, the tariff and platform pronouncements generally, that will be decided by the voters of these United States on November 6. For, while the results with respect to platform pledges may remain in doubt, style authorities are agreed that masculine fashions in America will be largely influenced during the next four years by the sartorial keynote sounded by the incumbent of the White House.

Al's Garb Snappy
A Democratic victory, contrary to usual precedent, would place at the head of the government a really snappy dresser. For Al's garb is as peppy as his speech. Whether it's a reflection of his own personality, or merely the skill of his New York tailor, the fact remains that the Democratic candidate doesn't go in for subdued duds. Frocks and cutaways, stripes and plaids, colorful ties and weskits. Spats. And a brown derby!

By contrast, Hoover's sartorial getup bespeaks his quiet, rather retiring personality—perhaps also something of his practicality and efficiency. Blue serge is his standby. Until recently, when his friends persuaded him that as a presidential candidate he ought to add some variety to his costumes, he wore little else. In fact, it was commonly remarked that Hoover had carried his penchant for standardization even to his clothes, and that he ordered suits from his tailor by telephone, as he would order eggs and bacon from his grocer.

Hoover Conservative
Now, however, Hoover has added grays and browns, in solid patterns, to his campaign array of suits. In hot weather he combines his usual double-breasted blue serge coat with light trousers and shoes. Winter and summer, except on rare occasions, the ensemble is topped off by a conservative felt fedora.

One item, however, on which both candidates agree, is the starched collar. Al's favorite is a spiffy wing collar, of medium height, but he sometimes varies this with a rather low turnover. Hoover wears, both winter and summer, on fishing expeditions as well as at cabinet meetings, a rather high starched turnover with rounded corners, into which he draws a dark conservatively-figured four-in-hand tie.

May Affect Campaign
This matter of clothes, in fact, may prove an important factor in the campaign, influencing votes perhaps as effectively as labored campaign arguments. Folks who like color and variety may be subconsciously drawn to vote for consciously drawn to vote for practicality, efficiency and—the Anti-Saloon League might add—sobriety, will lean toward Hoover.

For, just as the man who is elected president may affect our style in clothes through his own choice in costumes, so may the popular choice in sartorial adornment itself affect the outcome of the election.

PREDICTS U. S. TO SOON LEAD EUROPE IN AIRWAY SERVICE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—Although air passenger travel in the United States has developed less rapidly than air-mail traffic, passenger service within one year will be as great as in Europe, according to a statement by L. D. Gardner, president of the Aeronautic Chamber of Commerce, made public by the department of commerce.

"If in one and a half years our present remarkable progress has been made, it is safe to say that the next five years will see developments in this field which will more than fulfill the hopes of even the most sanguine exponents of air travel," Gardner said.

"The United States will forge ahead in its air commerce at home. Huge air liners will fly from one end of the continent to the other, day and night, with the safety and assurance of the best equipped railway of today."

The chief present obstacle to development of air passenger service in this country is the fast night railway service between the principal cities. This handicap will be reduced with the lighting of airways, designed to promote night air transportation.

The aeronautics branch of the department of commerce announced the mileage of United States airways operating August 15, 1928, the twenty-fifth anniversary of airplane flight, at 13,131 miles. It was recalled that in 1850, twenty-five years after establishment of the first railway, only 9,021 miles of railway lines were in use.

At the present time the air-miles are flown daily 24,974 miles; while the mileage flown daily in all services amounts to 32,240. The airway mileage of Europe in 1927 was 36,507. Twenty-seven important inter-city lines now operate regularly, and five others are scheduled for early inauguration. The latter are: Laredo-New Orleans, St. Louis-Omaha, Miami-Atlanta, New York-Montreal, and Atlanta-Chicago, with St. Louis spur.

HURRICANE SWEEPS FLORIDA COAST

DEATH STALKS OVER ISLANDS HIT BY STORM

Bahamas, Virgin Islands,
Porto Rico, Are
Devastated

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—Death and widespread destruction has been caused by the tropical hurricane that tore for a thousand miles through the West Indies from beyond the Virgin Islands to the coast of Florida, in a path probably fifty miles wide.

What has happened in the group of twenty islands comprising the Bahamas was not known today. Nassau, the chief city, has been cut off from communication for two days.

Reports received by the United Press, the United States government and communications companies from the West Indies gave only a partial picture of the havoc caused by the storm.

In the Virgin Islands, the navy was advised that six were dead and twenty injured, with damage estimated at $400,000.

Porto Rico, next in the path of the storm, was wrecked from coast to coast. San Juan, the capital, was in complete touch with the United States today, but communication with the interior of the island was impossible. Wires were down and roads impassable.

Any accurate estimate of the death toll therefore was impossible. The United Press correspondent at San Juan called that the death list in the entire island incontestably would exceed 100. The estimated dead included more than thirty-five at Humacao, ten at Ponce and more than thirty at Cayey.

Governor Horace M. Towne's estimate, made to the United Press, that more than half of the population was homeless would mean about 700,000 people in distress.

SAN JUAN, PORTO RICO, Sept. 17.—A meeting at the governor's palace has been called for today to consider means of bringing relief to the thousands of Porto Ricans who are homeless and starving as a result of the hurricane which swept the island Thursday.

Relief is being rushed to the island from the United States. Communication with the interior of the island is still impossible. Torrential rains have caused many landslides along the highways. Trees have been torn up by the roots.

At Cayey it was reported that thirty had perished and that thirty-five had died in the city of Humacao. It was believed that the injured in the two places would number more than 100. Ponce was reported as devastated but there was no definite count of dead or of the destruction there.

Estimates of the damage by a group of bankers here, placed the loss of cattle at $200,000; the loss of the coffee crop, one of the best in many years, at $300,000 and the loss of the sugar crop almost as heavy although hope was entertained that some of the cane flattened by the wind would recover. It was believed that the total damages would far exceed $500,000.

Suburbs of San Juan were still without power and flooded, early today.

AKRON, O., Sept. 17.—Loveday Boyne, the "hitch-hiker" girl, who fatally wounded John McCormick to "prevent my being attacked," was held today in Franklin, Pa., while authorities were deciding what steps shall be taken against her.

McCormick was killed after he had given the girl a "lift" when he found her walking on a country road, near here. At the time, she was hiking from Oklahoma to Oil City.

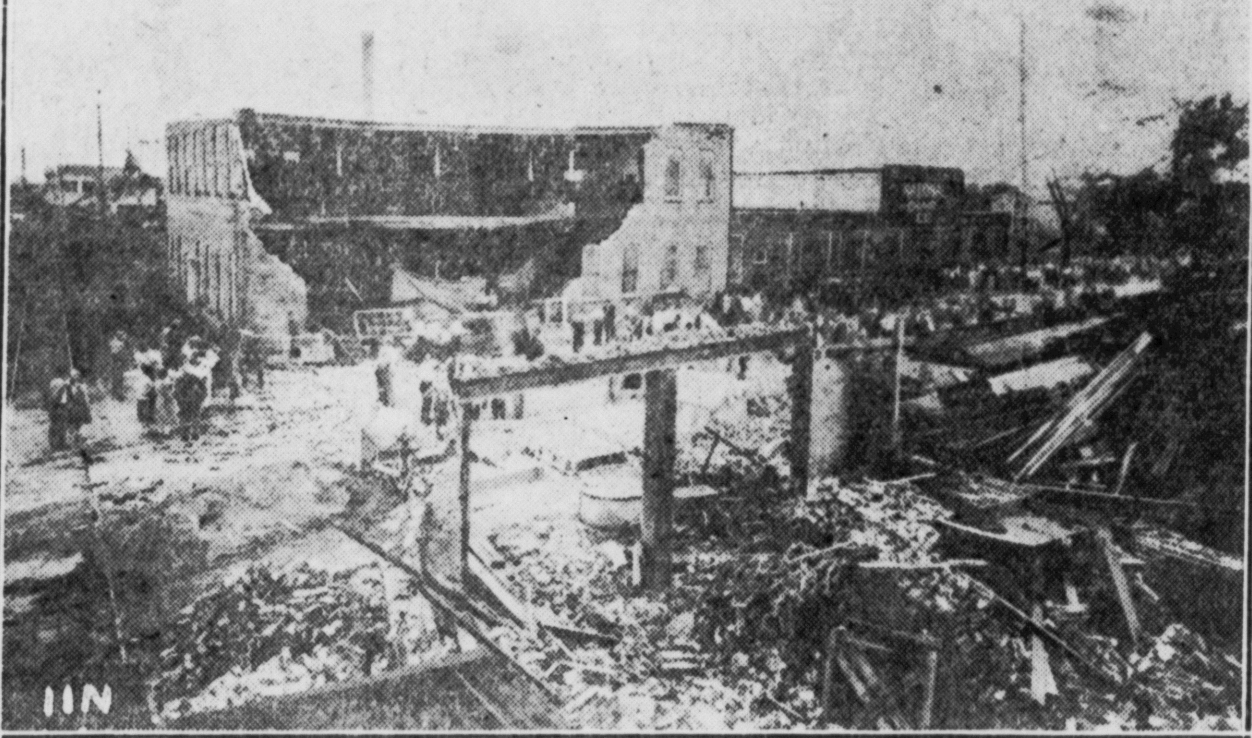

Miss Boyle, after being arrested in Oil City, told officers that she shot McCormick while resisting "his advances."

Assistant Prosecutor Virgil Rogers said today he was undecided what action will be taken against the girl, other than "bringing her back to Akron."

He said an extradition hearing will be held in Oil City, next Saturday, and that he expected the girl would be returned here.

Crowds See Party Leave
Albany On Special
Train

OMAHA, Sept. 17.—Governor Alfred E. Smith was on his way today for his campaign to win the west.

He will open his campaign tomorrow night at Omaha with a detailed analysis of his position on the farm relief problem, the dominant issue in that vast territory beyond the Mississippi, much of which the former East Side boy will see for the first time on his tour.

Governor Smith slept late today, recuperating from the strain of his last day in Albany. He had an arduous physical task, too, in getting through the crowds of Albany citizens which packed the station to wish him farewell and good luck.

As he and Mrs. Smith and their daughter, Mrs. John A. Warner, stepped from their car at the station, there was the sputter from a score of torches and the street was emblazoned with the brilliant crimson glow. The crowd set up a tremendous whoop. Smith wore his brown derby.

SADDLE BAGS TO BE EXEMPT

Lawyers Propose To Repeal Obsolete
Laws

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., Sept. 17.—An attempt at repeal of Ohio laws requiring trains to stop at crossings and exempting spinning wheels from taxes and doctors' saddle bags from levies, will be made at the next session of the legislature, members of the legislative committee of the Ohio Bar Association decided here. They also pledged themselves to work for repeal of 100 other obsolete laws.

Mrs. Sarah Hedrick, of Cleveland, chairman of the women's welfare committee of the association, proposed a bill to legitimize children born out of wedlock.

Sam Iddings of Dayton recommended a law requiring licenses for airplane pilots and James A. White, former superintendent of the Ohio Anti-Saloon League recommended elimination of the justice-of-the-peace courts.

The jury system was attacked by former U. S. Senator Atlee Pomerene. He referred to the Teapot Dome prosecution, which he directed, and blamed business men of the country for their unwillingness to serve on juries.

John A. Elden of Cleveland, president of the Ohio State Bar Association, presided at the meeting. Other speeches were made by Judge Florence E. Allen of the Ohio Supreme Court and Judge Robert H. Day of Massillon.

LABOR LEADERS AND UNION DELEGATES MEET IN COLUMBUS

Convention Not To Take
Sides In Political
Fight.

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 17.—Labor leaders and delegates from 100 unions throughout Ohio gathered in Columbus today for their forty-fifth annual convention.

Members of the credentials committee—Harry Rainsie, Cleveland, chairman; T. J. Creager, Springfield, and H. W. Buzzard, Dayton—met last night. They reported more credentials sent in than for any convention in recent years.

Creager, a veteran leader in labor circles, was present when the state federation was organized forty-five years ago and has never missed a convention. When the federation was organized, he represented the Springfield Typographical Union. Creager has served as secretary of the Springfield Central Labor Union thirty years.

Addresses of welcome and preliminary reports were to be made at the opening session today.

Although political activities were expected to come back before the convention, the federation was not expected to take any action which would pledge itself to any candidate.

The Ohio Federation of Barbers yesterday laid a preliminary meeting to today's sessions. Sixty-two barbers attended the meeting.

Federation officers were re-elected. They were: H. Oberden, Chillicothe, president; Al Sheets, Cincinnati, vice president; E. R. Legg, Hamilton, Paul Flavin, Portsmouth, W. F. Bailey, Akron, and W. F. Long, Mansfield, vice presidents; and George E. McKenna, Springfield, secretary.

STORY STARTS TOMORROW

Beatrice Burton, Popular Author, Presents "The Little Yellow House."

"The Little Yellow House," latest of the famous list of stories by Beatrice Burton, famed serial writer, promises to be one of the most popular of her stories when it starts in THE GAZETTE tomorrow.

Miss Burton's mother was the inspiration for the story but in it she has written a composite of all the mothers of the world finding the writing easy because she made it a picture of true life, drawn from her girlhood experiences with her mother and the women of the neighborhood in which she lived.

Probably Miss Burton is the most popular author whose stories have been used in this paper. Certainly they have been received with warm interest by readers everywhere they appear and expressions indicate that they have struck a

MIAMI NOT HIT BY HURRICANE ALONG COAST

Terror Stricken Citizens
Escape Force Of Storm.

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 17.—Miami, having escaped the full force of the second hurricane that had ravaged this state in the last two years, turned anxious eyes to the west and north today where the storm was reported raging toward Tampa and the Gulf of Mexico.

This city, which was the chief sufferer in the 1926 storm, caught only the fringe of the present gale and escaped with a few smashed awnings. The United States weather bureau reported that the highest velocity the wind attained was forty-eight miles an hour.

The hurricane swept through the Jupiter Inlet and landed with its full force on the twin cities of Palm Beach and West Palm Beach, where heavy damage was reported. Advice today said that the gale was proceeding with diminishing force across Lake Okeechobee toward Tampa and was destined to lose its fury in the Gulf of Mexico.

Miami Red Cross headquarters received an emergency call for nurses and physicians to be sent to West Palm Beach. No deaths have been reported yet, but several persons were said to have been injured.

Terror-stricken residents, remembering the power of the 1926 hurricane which took more than 400 lives and left $125,000,000 property damage, fled to storm cellars when the high wind started. Today they emerged, relieved when the news got about that no lives had been lost in the city.

Senator Joseph T. Robinson, Democratic nominee for vice president, who arrived here in a private car on a campaign tour, offered the use of the car for relief work.

Robinson said he would abandon all campaign plans pending the outcome of the hurricane situation and would accompany the relief party wherever it chose to go.

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Sept. 17.—Yachts in the Halifax River were being battered to pieces today by high winds and lashing seas, as the edge of the hurricane struck this city. Owners looked on helplessly.

A Florida East Coast Railway passenger train due here at 5:30 a. m. was long overdue. Railroad officials believed it was marooned somewhere in the hurricane stricken district to the south.

The number of passengers on the train was unknown.

At 8:30 a. m. winds from the southeast were increasing in force. The barometer reading here at 8:30 a. m. was 29.25, the lowest in years.

Two houses on Ocean Boulevard were blown down, but no one was reported injured.

TAMPA, Fla., Sept. 17.—Reports to the Gulf radio station from Miami today said that comparatively little damage had been done there by the hurricane.

Dawn broke dreary here. A heavy rain was falling. The barometer reading was 29.08 at 5:15 a. m. At Tarpon Springs the reading was 29.38 and falling. St. Petersburg reported 29.22 and a 40 mile an hour wind.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—The United Press radio station at Garden City, Long Island, received the following message from amateur station 4AFL at Tampa, Fla., at 4:50 a. m.:

"Raging gale blowing my house until it is shaking like a leaf. No one has been reported killed or injured, but the storm seems to be still mounting. I will try to get further reports and keep you informed. I cannot get in touch with any other radio station in Florida. I am badly scared."

The pilot escaped unhurt.

Ralph Role of the Civil Aviation School reported theft of the plane from the Mayfair landing field in Lyndhurst Village. Radio reports of the theft brought a report from Alonzo Drake, who said the shattered plane was on his farm.

STORMS RAVAGE NORTH AMERICA

Storms continued to ravage the North American continent today, adding to the terror and destruction that has been mounting steadily since Thursday.

The tropical hurricane, which struck Porto Rico and went north-westward through the Jupiter Inlet of the Bahamas, raged north-westward across Florida, spreading destruction along America's winter playground.

Porto Rico, re-establishing contact with the world, sent out reports that 100 persons were known to have lost their lives as a result of the hurricane and that the death toll was expected to mount considerably after receipt of reports from the interior of the island.

Property damage was conservatively estimated at $50,000,000. In Rockford, Ill., the death toll had reached eleven. Town officials were laying plans for rehabilitation work.

Twelve cities in Nebraska and South Dakota began to build out of their ruins.

Relief experts were on their way to Jacksonville, Fla., and the Red Cross was sending a unit to Porto Rico to aid the stricken.

EAST COAST CITIES CUT OFF AS TEMPEST WREAKS DESTRUCTION

Death Toll In Path Of Storm On Mainland Unknown; West Palm Beach In Path Of Twister.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Sept. 17.—A great hurricane from out of the Indies dealt destruction and possibly death to the Florida peninsula today.

South of Daytona on the east coast, towns and cities including West Palm Beach, were cut off.

The tempest was believed roaring inland. Its fury of winds cut off house tops, laid low communication systems, and caused suffering and perhaps death.

For hours there had been no authentic word of what had occurred in a fifty mile belt near West Palm Beach, which before the winter influx of visitors is a city of 22,000.

The United Press correspondent at Titusville early today telephoned that a screeching wind of perhaps 100 miles an hour velocity was rocking houses there.

Then the line went out.

Titusville is 150 miles north of Palm Beach.

Inland at Orlando houses rocked in the tempest. The storm cut down everything in its path.

Communication lines were generally out. Public utilities were crippled. Scores of towns and cities on the edge of the storm's path were in darkness last night.

Before wires to West Palm Beach failed, reports came of house tops sailing through the air, trees pulled up like grass and seas thirty-five to forty feet high pounding on the shore.

What was happening to human lives remained temporarily a matter of conjecture.

Red Cross and American Legion units mobilized for relief work at Miami, Jacksonville and Tampa.

Tampa, with its population of 52,000 was under a severe strain today. The hurricane had caused the barometer to drop with rapidity, as it in fact did, all over the peninsula. At 5 o'clock it was 29.16, a reading the board of trade announced as the lowest on record.

A motley stream of cars passed northward through Jacksonville today as residents of cautious nature moved out of the state to escape hurricane hazards.

At Daytona during the night, the main highway was clogged with traffic—bound for Georgia or further north.

The American Telephone and Telegraph Company reported early today that a 100 mile wind was raging at Palm Beach. The company's wires to points along the east coast went out, one by one. Repair crews were made ready to invade the hurricane ridden zone.

Western Union and Postal Telegraph wires were also reported laid down in the area.

The hurricane struck the coast yesterday centering near Jupiter.

JAWARSKI NEARING DEATH AS OFFICERS CONTINUE INQUIRY

Bandit Pleads To Be Killed; Find Hide-Out.

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 17.—New clues to the activities of Paul Jawarski, alleged notorious Pittsfield here for killing a policeman, were discovered today, police announced.

While the officers continued their search for Jawarski's life the subject of their inquiry lay on a hospital bed, begging policemen, who guarded him, to end his life. Jawarski's condition continues to become worse, doctors said. He was shot in a gun-fight with police last Thursday and in turn he killed one policeman, wounded another, and shot a civilian.

Police said today they had discovered the hide-out which Jawarski used here. They said they found two repeating shotguns, an automatic rifle, eight pistols, and a complete supply of ammunition.

Two caps, with the visors slit at the top so they could be pulled down to form masks also were found, the officers said.

What Will you do

When your Children Cry for It

There is hardly a household that hasn't heard of Castoria! At least five million homes are never without it. If there are children in your family, there's almost daily need of its comfort. And any night may find you very thankful there's a bottle in the house. Just a few drops, and that colic or constipation is relieved; or diarrhoea checked. A vegetable product; a baby remedy meant for young folks. Castoria is about the only thing you have ever heard doctors advise giving infants. Stronger medicines are dangerous to a tiny baby, however harmless they may be to grown-ups. Good old Castoria! Remember the name, and remember to buy it. It may spare you a sleepless, anxious night. It is always ready, always safe to use; in emergencies, or for every-day ailments. Any hour of the day or night that Baby becomes fretful, or restless, Castoria was never more popular with mothers than it is today. Every drugstore has it.

ROCKFORD TORNADO TOLL INCREASED TO FOURTEEN MONDAY

ROCKFORD, Ill., Sept. 17.—Death toll of the tornado which swept the northeast industrial section of Rockford Friday, mounted to fourteen today, with the recovery of three bodies from the ruins of the Rockford Chair and Furniture Company factory.

Beneath the pile of brick, stone and twisted steel, workmen found the bodies of Frank Strom, 34, Gunnar Rydin, 29, and August J. Peterson. Recovery of these three bodies accounted for the number missing in the tornado. The bodies of Herman Wydal, 47, Martin Anderson, 34, and Olaf Larsen, 27, were taken from the ruins last night.

Recapitulation showed that eight men lost their lives in factory B of the furniture plant, two in the Union furniture factory, three were killed by a flying roof and the fourteenth, a farm hand, was killed by flying timber.

City authorities announced today no aid had been necessary to carry out reconstruction. Officials conferred with bankers and tentatively agreed upon a plan of financing reconstruction work.

RELATIVES FAIL TO HEAR FROM XENIANS

Reports of the terrific hurricane that struck the Florida coast Sunday, have aroused anxiety among Xenia relatives of Mr. and Mrs. J. Kenneth Williamson and family and Miss Nelle Fletcher, who reside in West Palm Beach, Fla. Relatives have received no word from the former Xenians since the storm.

It is thought, since communication has been cut off by the southern storm, that they were unable to send word north. Miss Fletcher left Xenia last week for West Palm Beach and Mrs. Williamson just returned there after a visit here and in the east.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Price returned to their home in Frankfort, O., Sunday, after spending two weeks with their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Asa Price, Pleasant St.

Mr. and Mrs. Burch Smith, N. Detroit St., had as their guests over the week end, Mr. and Mrs. Smith's brother, sister-in-law and son, and Mrs. C. E. McWethy and son, Donald, of Norwood, Cincinnati.

Guests will begin to arrive Tuesday for the marriage of Miss Marjorie Flynn and the Rev. Archibald Wilson Webster, September 22. Miss Margaret Shillito, Kalamazoo, Mich., classmate of Miss Flynn's at Wesleyan and the Rev. Mr. Webster will arrive Tuesday; and other guests will arrive through the week.

Miss Betty Laist, Dayton, was the weekend guest of Mrs. E. J. Reynolds, N. Galloway St.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Gotherman and family, Port William, entertained as their Sunday dinner guests: Mr. and Mrs. Harper Devoe and daughter, Reva Alice; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Babb, Mr. and Mrs. Karl A. Babb and son, Dean; Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Woods and children, Charles and Pauline.

Mr. Edward Cyphers, Alexandria, Va., former Xenian, spent Sunday with friends in this city.

Mr. Henry Owen and son, Robert and Mr. Stanley Hill, Loveland, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Day and family.

Mrs. H. D. Beason, near Lumberton, is recuperating nicely at the Espey Hospital, this city, following an operation performed Friday.

Miss Elizabeth Bickett, W. Church St., is leaving Tuesday for Oxford, O., to re-enter Western College for women.

Mr. and Mrs. Leon Spahr accompanied Miss Elizabeth Alexander to Delaware, O., Sunday where she entered Ohio Wesleyan University.

Dr. and Mrs. Grant Davis, Mrs. Robert Young and son, Lieut. Robert Young, Jr., all of Washington, D. C., who have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Anderson, left Monday morning for their home.

Mr. R. S. Kingsbury, W. Second St., left last Friday for Battle Creek, Mich., to take a course of treatment.

Mrs. Jennie Wolf, Denver, Colo., who has been the guest of Mrs. Lillie Stephenson, is spending a few days in Dayton with Mrs. Donald Stutson.

Mr. and Mrs. Forest R. Corwin, N. Galloway St., had as their guests Sunday: Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph St. John and daughter, Leah, of Lebanon; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Corwin, of Spring Valley; Mr. and Mrs. Paul Dumford, Mrs. Christina Dumford and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Bowman and daughter, all of Dayton; Mrs. Gladys Digman, Washington, D. C., and Mr. and Mrs. Stacey Copey, Xenia.

Honoring the five new teachers of Central High School the entire faculty will be entertained at the home of Mrs. Pearl Wolf, S. Detroit St., Monday evening.

Miss Helen Giffins, Mansfield, O., is visiting her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph M. Hall, N. King St.

Mr. Homer Sadders, Xenia, had the third finger on his right hand badly crushed when he struck the member with a hammer, Monday morning.

Miss Lucille Chambliss, W. Second St., was removed to McClellan Hospital, Monday and will undergo a serious operation Tuesday morning.

County Treasurer Helen Dodds has returned to her office after being confined to her home on W. Third St., several days with grip.

Mr. and Mrs. V. E. Seibert and twin sons, of Columbus, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. V. L. Fairies. Mr. Seibert formerly taught in Central High School.

INSPECTED SEED

Thirty-one wheat growers in nineteen Ohio counties, had for sale registered or certified seed wheat from this year's crop, on September 5, according to announcement of the Ohio Seed Improvement Association, which has inspected the seed for registry and certification. This list included the names of men who had submitted threshed samples for examination, as well as having had their wheat inspected in the field.

The varieties and grades offered include registered Trumbull from five growers, certified Trumbull from eight growers, registered Fulbio from four growers, certified Fulbio from twelve growers, and certified Rudy from two growers. The counties in which the wheat was grown are Auglaize, Clark, Erie, Marion, Wayne, Huron, Henry, Lucas, Mercer, Ross, Seneca, Summit, Ashland, Brown, Hamilton, Mahoning, Medina, Shelby, and Washington.

Prices on the registered seed, according to information reaching the officers of the association, range from $2 to $2.75 a bushel on the registered seed, and $1.75 to $2.25 a bushel on the certified seed. The prices are fixed not by the association but by the growers of the seed, and depend upon the local demand and supply, the reputation of the grower, and the sales methods which he uses in disposing of his stock.

CITY SCHOOL ENROLLMENT HAS REACHED 1,896 IS ESTIMATED

Enrollment in the Xenia public schools for the first semester is placed at 1,896 by City School Superintendent Louis Hamerle. This is a conservative estimate, according to Superintendent Hamerle, who declares that this number has since been increased slightly.

There are 235 pupils enrolled in the first grade, more than in any other grade in the city.

Following is the enrollment by grades: First, 235; second, 225; third, 197; fourth, 165; fifth, 145; sixth, 132; seventh, 137; eighth, 140; ninth, 149; tenth, 118; eleventh, ninety-eight; twelfth, eighty-two.

The Lincoln grade school enrollment is placed at 269; East High School building, 140; Central High School building, 632; McKinley grade building, 594; Spring Hill grade school, 272; and Orient Hill grade school, seventy-nine.

Superintendent Hamerle points out that the lower grades especially are greatly overcrowded, a condition which exists due to inadequate funds to provide a sufficient number of teachers.

Enrollment by grades in the various school buildings follows:

Lincoln grade school: First, thirty-three; second, fifty-seven; third, forty-six; fourth, forty-five; fifth, thirty-two; sixth, forty-six; special grade ten.

East High School: Seventh, twenty-nine; eighth, thirty-five; ninth, twenty-six; tenth, nineteen; eleventh, seventeen; twelfth, fourteen.

Central High School: First, forty-eight; seventh, 108; eighth, 105; ninth, 123; tenth, ninety-nine; eleventh, eighty-one; twelfth, sixty-eight.

McKinley grade school: First, seventy-six; second, ninety-four; third, eighty-nine; fourth, seventy.

NO APPOINTMENT TO POSITION IS MADE

No action has been taken by the executive board of the Greene County Farm Bureau regarding the appointment of a successor to J. R. Kimber, county extension agent, who resigned, effective October 1.

Several logical people for the position are being considered but no overtures have been made by the local officers. It is expected that a called meeting of the board will be held soon in regard to the appointment.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

GOOD COUNCIL—Wash ye, make you clean; put away the evil of your doings from before mine eyes; cease to do evil; Learn to do well; seek judgment, relieve the oppressed, judge the fatherless, plead for the widow.—Isa 1:15 and 17.

MARRIAGE AND JOKES

"There is no divorce in Italy, nor will there be."
Benito Mussolini, Italian dictator, in one terse sentence has settled that vital social problem so far as his nation is concerned.

Mussolini, in an article written for Cosmopolitan, makes this declaration, and denounces divorce, companionate marriage and other forms of marital experiment as influences which are not only undermining the home, but also the state where they are prevalent.

Even the joking thrust at marriage, in print or on the stage has come under the dictator's ban.

"Marriage is not a travesty on life," he explains. "It cannot be made the subject for pleasantries in the newspapers or the target for farcical thrusts on the stage. The social conscience must be made stern against any influence which effects a travesty on the sacred purposes of a married existence."

While marriage, and even death, are sometimes referred to in a spirit of merriment, it is not that anyone considers either a joking matter.

It is the action of individuals in dodging or approaching these most serious things of life which often proves amusing to bystanders looking on.

THE MAKING OF A GENIUS

"Geniuses are made, not born."

This is the conclusion reached by Dr. John B. Watson, distinguished psychologist, whose 20-year study of infant life has led him to believe that the career of every person is shaped by the environment and parental guidance of his first four years.

Any normal infant can be moulded into a potential genius in some field, Dr. Watson asserts in an article written for Cosmopolitan. Given the proper training and shielded from an unfortunate early influence, all the child will need to become a Lindbergh, an Edison, a Madame Curie or a J. P. Morgan is the "break" provided by the proper combination of circumstances.

"First a man must be trained technically—and there are millions of technically trained men—and next he must get the break. It is the sharp, sudden change in environment plus the very definite situation he happens to be placed in at the moment of the environmental change that gives a man his chance for sudden eminence," explains the psychologist.

Early treatment and environment determines whether a child is to be a success or failure, he asserts, by instilling fearlessness or cowardice, dependence or self-reliance, a high code of honor or a vacillating, crafty character.

Years of experimenting with babies at Johns Hopkins University and other centers have convinced Dr. Watson and his colleagues that the infant does not inherit cowardice, temper, hate, love, sympathy, curiosity or any of the other characteristics which make up the adult.

And many folks are very much in favor of advanced ideas, provided the same do not interfere with their own privileges.

The Way of the World

By GROVE PATTERSON

WORK—THAT'S ALL

When you discover a man who gets through an enormous amount of work every day and yet finds time to read three books a week, or maybe five, you look at him with wonder. Or when you hear of a man who has produced a full length novel a year for many years or written a 12-volume history of the United States, you stand in awe and wonder. How do they do it? How can a man produce so much?

The answer is simple enough. It's work—just work. And most of us are very lazy—not just a little lazy, but very lazy. Study the great producers and you find they do not sleep eight, nine or ten hours. They are not afraid of five-thirty in the morning. They are not shocked by finding themselves busy at midnight. They have energy, abundance of it. Some of them even have energy without health. That is a hard load to carry. Above all they have the initiative to start things. They have endurance. They have the capacity not only for working—but for starting to work.

SECTIONAL PREJUDICE

Next to religious and racial intolerance there is perhaps nothing worse than sectional intolerance. The prevalence of opinion in the Middle West that New York is "up stage" and contemptuous of the rest of the country or that New York wants to run the rest of the country is without foundation in fact and is merely an unfounded prejudice. And equally to be deplored and condemned is the apparent opinion of some New Yorkers that the world comes to some sort of a mysterious end on the outskirts of Buffalo and that the Middle West is largely peopled by Indians and over-run with rattlesnakes and stage coaches.

The intelligent people of the West are not prejudiced against New York and the intelligent people of New York are not prejudiced against the West. Too bad there are not more intelligent people in both places.

A BAD DISPOSITION

A man or woman must have an extraordinary amount of ability, a tremendous capacity for useful production to be forgiven a bad disposition. An arrant temper and bad manners are not to be excused in anybody except a positive, producing genius. You ought to be spanked when you show the teeth of your temper or temperament.

FOOLS

An old proverb says that nobody is always a fool, but everybody is sometimes. There is hope for the fool provided he isn't permanent and provided there is something in which leads him frankly to admit that he's a fool.

The Diary of a New Yorker

By CLARK KINNAIRD

NEW YORK—Down in front of the Times building at Times Square you can find a memory expert whose story beats that of all the "Mr. Addison Sims, of Seattle" yarns that you ever heard. The memory expert is a newboy. He caters to the news appetites of thousands of persons whose daily business takes them anywhere in the vicinity of the square. Many go out of their way to buy their papers from him. And if this fellow isn't a memory expert at least he is a mighty intelligent student of psychology.

But to his story. I was told, on first visiting the stand with a friend, that within a couple of days this newboy would see me coming and have my papers ready for me by the time I reached him. I didn't believe it, for at that moment the space around the stand was crowded and papers were selling faster than the well-known hot cakes. Forgetting the matter entirely, I visited the stand regularly on the next day and the following one. On the morning of the third day the newboy had my papers ready, and every time that he has been on duty since has not failed to repeat the feat. And it is a feat, when you consider that I buy different combinations of papers at different hours of the day. But the real test, I suppose, will come when, after I've been away from the city for a few months, to return and have him say: "Oh, yes, I remember you. You want the Times, the World and the News." In true "Mr. Addison Sims" style.

Did you ever stop to think where the pictures you see in your morning papers come from? Pictures of events that happened, perhaps, the night before? It's somewhat of a task, you'll agree, to get these pictures to Columbus and Chicago and Denver and San Francisco and all the other cities of the "provinces," as New York writers are wont to term any district outside of a 20-mile radius of the metropolis.

In many cases it can't be done, at least with the present facilities for transporting the pictures. There are a number of processes which the picture must go through before it is ready for use in the paper. All this takes time, valuable time.

Usually the organizations that supply photos to newspapers use points of distribution situated along the telephone lines. Telephoto is a method of transmitting pictures by wire. If you are fortunate enough to live in a city in which telephoto stations are situated, there are only eight of them by the way, you may see pictures of today's events in the papers today, or at the very latest, by tomorrow. Outside of these cities, however, the time elapsing between the event and the picture of it varies as to the quality of railroad service between the point of distribution and your town.

Let's take an example to show how it works. Something happens in New York—a subway accident. First, the pictures must be obtained, usually under great difficulty. The pictures are placed on the telephoto wires for other points of distribution. Meanwhile the papers supplied from New York City are receiving their prints direct, without the added step of wiring the picture. In Cleveland and Chicago and San Francisco other prints are being made from the telephotos, and these are supplied to the papers within a fast mailing radius of those cities.

Many papers cannot use photographs, lacking engraving plants, or sometimes even desiring the photos in mat form. These mats must be made from engravings of the pictures. And that means more work, and more time. In big cities men work all night, often, just to guarantee that you see the picture of an event the next day, to satisfy your appetite for news.

MENU HINT

Macaroni and Cheese
Tomato and Cucumber with French Dressing
Peach Shortcake
Coffee
The shortcake will serve six people, allowing three of the six to have a second helping or two peaches. Or I think the dough could be stretched to allow it to cover 12 peaches, and then two could be served to each person. The same recipe would be good with apples used in place of the peaches, provided the shortcake was not baked too long so that the apples would fall to pieces.

Today's Recipes.
Peach Shortcake. Two cups flour, one-half teaspoon salt, one-half cup butter, two teaspoons baking powder, one-half cup milk. Sift flour, salt and baking powder. Add butter and mix as for biscuits, adding milk a little at a time. Roll dough at least one-fourth inch thick. Peel nine peaches, but do not slice or remove pits. Cut dough into strips, two inches wide, and of sufficient length to wrap about the peaches "middle." Place peaches thus wrapped side by side in baking dish. Pour over them syrup made by dissolving one cup sugar in one-half cup boiling water. Bake in moderately warm oven about 30 minutes.

THE BLACK CAT

How to Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

Selecting a Home Treatment

The next thing on the program was to teach Patricia the technique of a complete home treatment course. The average woman has not the time, even if she has the money, to frequent beauty salons for daily treatment, and I have always believed that one of the most important things for a good operator to know is how to teach her client to care for herself. It is regular, simple, self-care which ensures every woman real and lasting beauty.

Patricia had three outstanding faults. The first was blackheads, and this was corrected through the use of a blackhead wash, depending upon just how her skin reacted. The second was enlarged pores and oiliness "bars sinister" to beauty. Refining these pores was quite simple, since her skin responded beautifully to the lotion I recommended.

The third problem was the pimples and blotches which no woman can possess and be really lovely. An acne cream took care of them and swiftly cleared them away.

The only other two requirements for scientific home care were cleansing cream to alternate with a wash to preserve the delicacy and softness of the skin texture, and an astringent tonic to use as both powder base and refresher.

Makeup was a subject in itself, for type and personality had to be seriously considered before we would teach Patricia how to make the best of herself. . . .

It would be interesting to any one of you—almost as interesting as it was to me—to see how this despondent, unbecomingly young girl began blossoming into a healthy, fine-skinned woman. She seemed to develop self-confidence and poise with every treatment, nor is this at all unusual, for I have found through my entire career that the charming women of the world have always been the women conscious of the fact they looked their very best.

Good grooming, particularly good face grooming, will make any woman pleasant to look at. Her eyes need not be large or dark, nor need they have any of the requirements poets dream about, and women do not, as a rule, possess. But long lashes, even, well-groomed eyebrows, the extraordinary depth which very frequently is nothing more than a faint touch of becoming shadow just under the eyebrow, these they may have at little enough cost. They may not have fine features, but they can have lovely complexions, and to my mind, and to the mind of many others like me, these really constitute beauty.

Diet and Health

Some Words on Lecturers

With All Sorts of Claims False Health Teachers

A lecturer on dietetics and psychology by a man from Canada who uses the title of doctor interests me. His ads state that he is president of a number of societies and give very laudatory recommendations from many prominent people, and also has many degrees from prominent universities. He is a very young looking man, but claims that he is 47 years old. After the lecture he sells capsules of extracts of vegetables which he extracts, together with his psychology, are responsible for his youthful appearance. A newspaper in Toronto claims that he is only 26 years old and it is not entitled to the many university degrees which he claims to possess. It would be interesting to know if you could tell me something about him.

MR. N.
It is not unusual for impostors of this sort to claim all sorts of degrees and offices. It is usually found that they haven't any of these degrees nor are such societies in existence. It is also not unusual for them to claim that they are very much older than they are, to impress their hearers with the efficacy of their methods.

While such lecturers are free, they are usually given to arouse interest in a private class which is being formed which will give you the secrets of the lecturer's powers, at anywhere from $15 to $50 per person, for the course. And then you will often find they have some concoction to sell which helps to raise the income.

I don't know of this faker, Mr. N., but have seen and heard of many similar ones.

Commercial Laboratory Work

Mrs. N. sends me the report of a urinalysis of her little 5-year-old girl, and wants me to tell what it means. She is very much worried about some of the figures.

It is a waste of money and time and gives unnecessary worry for one to have a laboratory examination of any kind made that isn't ordered, and interpreted to you by an examining physician. Sorry I cannot do this for you, Mrs. N. You must take your little girl to a physician.

Does an Operation Cause Overweight

"Dear Doctor: I am in need of an operation, but I have heard of so many women who get fat after one that I am worried over that point. I know a woman who has become immensely fat since an operation. She claims it was the operation. If I were to become like that I would lose my happy home, for my husband thinks my present weight of 130 is a little too much."

MRS. G.

Many trace the beginning of their overweight to the convalescent period after an operation or some illness, or child birth, and they often feel that the illness or operation was the direct cause. This is not true at all. After such experiences the patient begins to eat in order to gain strength and with the activities limited by their weakness, the fat soon begins to accumulate. Then the habit is formed of eating too much and it is continued. Have your operation, Mrs. G., if it is necessary, and simply watch your weight and do not allow it to get beyond bounds, for this retards convalescence. We have a pamphlet on reducing and gaining weight which you may have.

Kellygrams

By FRED C. KELLY

A friend of mine who is sales manager for a big concern manufacturing a clever device for household use, advertised for salesmen capable of earning from $100 to $200 a week.

He received fifty replies. Half of these were so stupidly worded that he immediately threw them out.

He wrote to the other twenty-five asking them to call him by telephone.

Twenty of these sounded promising enough to justify personal interviews.

When they came to see him, he tested their tenacity by telling them everything discouraging about the job that he could think of. He added that it would be necessary for each applicant to attend a sort of night school for a week to receive a course of instruction in selling this particular article.

Only sixteen showed up at the first session of this school and only twelve kept coming throughout the week.

Of the dozen that finally went to work, only eight lasted more than two weeks and just four of these stayed for a year.

One lone man stayed for nearly two years.

Peter's Adventure

ALBATROSS ARRIVES ON A STORM CLOUD

"The Two-Legs on the ship below were talking about him. What they said, however, soon relieved Cormorant's fears.

"Look, boys, as sure as I am a sailor, a bird has taken refuge upon our coming tower. By all the rules of the sea that means the storm is to be a bad one, but that we are to come out of it safely. No bird ever settles upon a ship that is going to sink. It is a Cormorant, too, unless I am much mistaken. I wonder how he happened to be so far at sea."

"Cormorant didn't hear what the others said, for just that moment a strange voice closely spoke."

"Hello, stranger. Taken refuge, I see, upon the ship of the Two-Legs. You ought to have learned to fly as I do. Then you would never grow tired, let the wind blow and the waves roar as hard as they will."

"Flying right alongside of him, but so smoothly and quietly that he never seemed to move a pin, was a beautiful bird. He was almost pure white."

"Well, well, well! What surprise to find you here, my friend," remarked the strange bird. "If you were a Peter."

Mrs. H.: Our article on the Menopause will answer your questions.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Peters cannot diagnose, nor give personal advice. Your questions, if of general interest, will be answered in the column, in turn. Requests for articles must be accompanied by a fully self-addressed, stamped envelope and 2 cents in coin for each article. To cover cost of printing and handling. For the pamphlet on reducing and gaining, 10 cents in coin, with fully self-addressed, stamped envelope. Must be enclosed. Address Dr. Peters, in care of this paper.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—Just verging on 80 and a writer all his life, "Daddy" George F. Weeks, director of the Mexican news bureau in Washington, is to give his first regular book to the world shortly.

He calls it "California Copy"—an early day Pacific coast history, and about the gossipiest volume since Mark Twain wrote his reminiscences of the same section of the country.

"Daddy" Weeks was not a 49-er, but it was only 1876 when he took his one lung from Horace Greeley's New York City composing room to the Golden State by way of Panama, and the western slope of the Rockies appears to have been a pretty colorful region for a couple of decades even after that year.

"A Derringer," "Daddy" assures me, "was about as essential an article of newspaper office equipment in the far west then as a type case and a Washington hand press."

The custom seems to have been to tote one—I mean a derringer—in each pants pocket, and many was the long year, I understand, during which "Daddy" Weeks would no more have thought of venturing abroad without his 41-calibre armament than minus his suspenders; a belt's sole function in that era being to support a holstered weapon.

The details of "Daddy's" career are well authenticated.

Frequent applications to him for information as to historical incidents, in connection with the work of a younger generation of chroniclers, finally led him, in fact, to jot down a record of his own experiences.

At his age "Daddy" probably never will get around to it, but a story of the Mexican revolution by the same author would make the most natural imaginable sequel to "California Copy."

More, besides that it undoubtedly would bulge with interest and thrilling adventures, it certainly would have the very highest value to future historians.

"Daddy" Weeks probably knows more from a greater number of angles of the prolonged struggle south of the Rio Grande, than any other man living.

Prospecting on the Mexican side of the border at the time of the anti-Diaz revolt's very beginning, he was promptly drafted as a correspondent for the old New York Herald and served a succession of American newspapers, as their field representative, until well after the late Gen. Obregon's installation as president.

Hence the Mexican News Bureau of today.

Precisely what its business is I never have been able to determine. Indeed, I strongly suspect that it is merely "Daddy" Weeks' favorite plaything. The fact remains that he is the best-posted man in the United States on Mexican affairs and one of Ambassador Teller's most trusted American advisers.

At all events, "Daddy" has been on terms of personal intimacy with every Mexican of note since the closing days of the Diaz regime—Madero, Villa, Col. Fierro, Villa's ferocious lieutenant, who shot fifty and some odd prisoners, simply to test a new gun he had just acquired, Huerta, Carranza, Obregon, Calles—the entire list up to date.

"Daddy" Weeks was anything but a spring chicken even as long ago as the start of the Diaz revolution, but he was in it all, up to his neck, until a weak heart—his bad lung long a thine of the past—drove him from the high altitude of Mexico City.

So now he directs the Mexican News Bureau—my office neighbor—and, at nearly fourscore, is just making his debut in literature.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

REAL HEROES AND HEROINES AROUND IN ALL WALKS OF LIFE

One of my correspondents wrote me one day that she believed most of her friends who seemed happy and smiling really were unhappy, concealing griefs of various kinds. It is so with most. And it is a constant wonder to me that people—who do not pose as being the least heroic, but are just as ordinary in most things as you and I—bear great sorrows so nobly. One woman who recently had a dreadful shock in the sudden loss of her son, told me that when the news first reached her, she was stunned, but that after a moment she felt wave after wave of strength coming to her, and realized that she COULD bear it and would be sustained. It makes us ashamed of grumbling of ordinary troubles when we see these heroic souls.

Mrs. W.: If your husband has money and knows about the young man he might easily make it appear that you are not a fit person to have the care of your children. For their sake, therefore, it would be better to stay in your home for a time at least. Can this young man support you, and are you sure you are not so hungry for love and attention that you are infatuated with him rather than in love? You mustn't move hastily in a matter like this. Many husbands talk and act as if their wives had nothing to do when they really work very hard, as you do. Ask him what it would cost him to hire one all the work that you do. You see, even if your husband is not easy to live with you have a good home for your babies and I would certainly like to advise you to give it up without knowing what is before you. Can't you try to be happy in them and your home, making the best of things until they are a little older and you are more sure of yourself? It may be that your husband cares more for you and the children than he says, and if you try to set his good points and appreciate them he will be more affectionate and reasonable.

Waiting Sis: Why try to win back a boy whom you cannot trust? Go with your new friend for a time and see if you cannot forget the first. There is no harm in your sending him a birthday card if you really want to, but I'd say you had better not as you are not going together.

A Blonde: I think you were perfectly justified in being harsh with the boy, and no apology necessary, from you, at any rate. However, if you think you are too severe, be friendly next time you see him to show that all is forgiven and forgotten.

Lonesome: You might wait until you see the boy again and show by your manner that you are sorry you could not accept his escort, or you could write him a note and invite him to come to see you, as you refused to write before. It is perfectly proper for a girl to go with a boy shorter than herself.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am invited to my cousin's wedding, which is to take place in the morning. Would it be proper for me to wear a black satin dress trimmed with fringe, a felt hat and suede pumps? If not, what would be proper?" BEE.

Such a costume would be perfectly proper.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: We are two young girls, aged 15 and 16. We can pet, smoke and drink and are very good sports, but we are not very popular with the boys. Please advise us." TWO SPORTS.

You mean you are sporty, not sports, girls. Try being really good sports and cutting out the "flaming youth stuff."

"Cormorant laughed heartily—more at the other's glee than at the joke itself."

"To be sure I see the point!" cried he. "He is black and you are white, so of course that is the exact difference. By the way, do you by any chance happen to be Albatross?"

"That is it!" screamed the fellow. "How in this world did you ever guess it?"

Next — "A Long Lost Neighbor."

The two major parties have united in the "Good Samaritan" in color we are as different as black is from white. Ha! Ha! That is a joke. Do you see the point?"

Eddie Tailors Overwhelm Reserves Here Sunday 16-7

SPRINGFIELD TEAM LAYS M'MICHAELS AWAY AT BEGINNING

Pitcher Chased In First Under Rain Of Base Hits

Mauling two pitchers for eighteen hits for a total of thirty-five bases and aided by miserable fielding the Springfield team, massacred the Reserves 16 to 7 to win the opener of a scheduled three-game series Sunday afternoon at Washington Park.

Guy McMichael, Bellbrook, ace of the Reserve pitching staff, was knocked out of the box in the first inning after visitors had scored six runs and made four hits. Cyphers was transferred to the mound in the second and fared no better. However, he had to endure the punishment the remainder of the distance as no other hurlers were available to take his place.

Jones, underhand curve ball artist, twirled a good game for Springfield, allowing only eight hits, fanning nine batters and walking four men. He had Johnson in particular on his staff, fanning the Reserve leadoff man four times.

Reserves also played a sloppy game in the field, making ten errors, and this did not help out their cause to any great extent. Springfield made but two misplays.

"Wu" Fane Ward, second baseman, was the big noise with the stick for the Tailors. He had a perfect average for the day, six hits, including two home runs, two triples, a double and a single, in as many times at bat. He personally scored four runs and batted in six more, thus accounting for ten of his team's sixteen tallies. Lewis was also hitting hard, getting three hits, including a home run, triple and single.

Durnbaugh and Tangeman did the heavy stick work for the Reserves, the former contributing a home run and a double. Tangeman connected for a double and two singles. Conley's only hit was a home run.

Strangely enough each of the five home runs made during the contest came with the bases empty.

Springfield had thirteen earned runs and the Reserves six.

The Eddie Tailors clinched the game in the first two innings, scoring six in the first and four in the second. They added two in both the fourth and sixth innings and one each in the eighth and ninth. Reserves had four scoring innings, counting one in the second and third, two in the fifth and three in the seventh.

Reserves expect to obtain a new Dayton pitcher for the second game of the series next Sunday.

BOWERSVILLE WINS FROM JAMESTOWN; SERIES IS EVENED

Bowersville defeated Jamestown Sunday for the first time this season, 5 to 1.

This was the second game of a three-game series. Jamestown won last Sunday 4 to 2, and also won the first series with two straight victories.

The final game of this series will be played next Sunday, September 23.

Sunday's game was featured with clean fielding and hitting. Bock registered Jamestown's only marker with a homer in the creek in right field. He also came back with a three-bagger in the ninth, when E. Haughey fell in center field, and the ball went over his head. D. Murrell starred for the Bayliffs with two doubles and two singles out of five times up. Smith, Davis, and Conklin tied with two hits each. Smith had eight and Evans nine strikeouts. All runs were earned.

LANG CHEVROLETS OPEN SEPTEMBER 30

The newly-organized Lang Chevrolet football team will hold another practice workout Monday evening at 6 o'clock at Washington Park. It is announced.

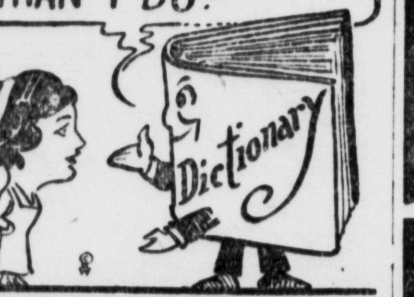

Lights have been installed and all players are requested to be on hand.

The opening practice was held Sunday morning, at which about eighteen players turned out, and the outlook for a successful season of independent football here is encouraging.

The local team will open its season Sunday, September 30, with either Miamisburg or the Washington C. H. Tigers, according to Leroy Wones, who has been appointed manager of the eleven.

HEATHMAN IN SEMI-FINALS OF PRESIDENT'S CUP TOURNEY

One player has entered the semi-finals and one other entrant has advanced to the second round of play in the annual President's Cup golf tournament at the Xenia Country Club, which will also determine the 1923 club champion. E. H. Heathman is the player to reach the semi-finals, having won both his first and second round matches. Heathman defeated Dr. L. W. Sontag, Yellow Springs, his first round opponent, 5 up, but was extended to twenty-two holes to eliminate H. L. Sayre 1 up in the second round.

Sayre had previously put Eber Reynolds out of the running 3 up in the first round. The Heathman-Sayre match was bitterly fought. The contestants completed the two rounds all square on the eighteenth green. They halved the next three holes and Heathman finally won out on the twenty-second green.

In another first round match, A. H. Finlay defeated David Cherry 4 up and 3 to play. Dr. T. F. Myler and Dr. A. B. Kester ended their first round match in a tie as darkness prevented them from playing extra holes. They will resume the match Wednesday.

In the four first round matches remaining to be played, Prof. C. S. Adams, Antioch College, 1927 club champion, who led the qualifying round of the present tournament, is paired with Dean P. C. Nash, of Antioch; Charles Fisher opposes D. A. Magruder, Yellow Springs; S. M. McKay meets Vern L. Fairies, and W. C. Craig will play Dr. W. T. Ungard.

INDIANS BEAT CUBS BEHIND EFFECTIVE PITCHING SUNDAY

Alexander held the visitors to five hits and the Xenia Indians bunched fourteen blows off two hurlers to defeat the Springfield Cubs 7 to 4 in a game featured by brilliant fielding at times Sunday afternoon at Martindale Park, Cedarville.

The contest was featured by the completion of nine double plays, six twin killings by the Indians and three by the Cubs. These contributed in keeping the score down.

The Cubs got away to a one-run advantage in the first frame but the Indians came back with a pair of runs in their half of the round. Springfield took a temporary lead once more by tallying twice in the second. The Indians, however, went ahead with three runs in the third and were never headed although the visitors added another counter in the fifth. The home nine put over two runs in the last of the fifth and the scoring of both teams was through for the day.

The Cubs were guilty of three miscues in the field and the Indians fielded faultlessly except on two occasions.

Shope, Indian player, knocked a home run in the third with a mate on base.

Alexander, Indian pitcher, was in a knockout mood, whiffing fourteen batters, but his lack of control got him in several difficult ties. He walked seven batters. Potters and Creager divided the mound work for Springfield.

The Indians are anxious to arrange a series with the Xenia Reserves to decide the county baseball championship and are taking this opportunity to issue a challenge to the local nine.

Score by innings:
Cubs 120 010 000-4 5 3
Indians 203 020 003-7 14 2
Batteries: Springfield—Potters, Creager and Armentrout; Indians—Alexander and E. Minor.

SHERIFF IS PROBING TRAFFIC ACCIDENT

Sheriff Ohmer Tate is investigating a report by J. Krumm, 975 S. High St., Columbus, O., that his auto was crowded off the Springfield and Xenia Pike, one-half mile south of Yellow Springs, by an auto driven by an unidentified colored man, who drove on without stopping, at 6 o'clock Sunday evening.

Krumm's machine was also occupied by members of his family and Earl Emerson, Columbus, O.

The car driven by the colored man, a Packard sedan, bore license number 286,751, issued at Springfield, O. Krumm told the sheriff.

Occupants of the Krumm car were not hurt and their machine was not badly damaged.

Details of the accident were meager but Sheriff Tate believes both cars were traveling in the same direction and that the unidentified antolst tried to pass Krumm's machine.

SUBJECT—
“Making A Good Store Better”

Dear Customers:

In the past Jobe Bros. have enjoyed a fine reputation and the confidence and good will of this community, but we realize that like all individuals and organizations we have our shortcomings, and are setting out to “make a good store better.”

We will do this in no one way but in numerous ways. By careful study of the methods and habits of our customers and careful application of the information thus gained, we propose to “make a good store better.”

We are sincere in this effort and ask you to co-operate with us by telling us of the suggestions for improvement which must occur to you from time to time.

Yours very truly,

MOTHER!

Mrs. Milburn was always trying to make things better than they were.

Neither poverty nor worry nor the hardest kind of work, year in and year out, had made her bitter.

“Some folks are born with a silver spoon in their mouths, but I must have been born with a broom in my hands,” she would say at the end of a particular hard day. And in this shining optimism she had brought up her three children.

Sometimes, when troubles piled up a little more than usual, she would slip into the little clothes closet off the hallway. “Mother’s praying again,” the children would say.

“It’s all a matter of having faith”—that was Mrs. Milburn’s motto. Read about this wonderful mother in

ANCIENT CAR HELPS ANTIOCH'S HAZING

Not daunted by the mysterious disappearance of the farm wagon they had engaged for their hazing activities, sophomores of Antioch College, Yellow Springs, retained a broken down automobile which freshmen were forced to pull through the streets of the town Friday night.

This is the first time in the history of the college that a modern conveyance was used for the old hazing stunt.

A long rope was attached to the front axle of the car, and seventy freshmen were forced to trudge through the town singing "Hail, Hail the Gang's All Here," to the urging of their older classmates.

Stops were made at the homes of various professors who were serenaded with songs and cheers and after playing "leap frog" on Xenia Ave., the procession broke up.

Texas Judge Sitting In New York Not Approached By Bootleggers

Judge William H. Atwell

By RUBY WEIL Staff Writer for Central Press and The Gazette

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—If the prohibition law is being violated in New York—and there are those who hint that it is—Federal Judge William H. Atwell, of Dallas, Tex., who sat in federal district court in Brooklyn several weeks, had no personal evidence of the fact.

And if night club hostesses are wont to flout Mr. Volstead's dictum, Judge William H. Atwell has no personal knowledge of the fact. "I have not seen one night club or one speakeasy since I have been in New York," declares the judge.

"I have not been approached by a single bootlegger," he adds. There are those who, reading the judge's statement, might suggest that it results from the fact that justice is blind. There are others who will see in it Judge Atwell's contention that bootleggers and speakeasies are not the cause, but the result of violation of the liquor law. Or, as he puts it: "Bootleggers are not the crop of the prohibition law, but the harvest of the crop of lawbreakers."

Attitude Toward Prohibition Judge Atwell, who came to Brooklyn during his vacation to help clear an overcrowded docket, was anti-prohibitionist in principle and action before the passage of the Eighteenth amendment. But since the country became nominally dry, the judge has not taken a drink, either here or abroad, he avers. As a judge, he feels he cannot, off the bench, nullify a law for whose violation he has sent men to prison. As an American, he feels he must not break any law which the will of a majority of his fellowmen has placed on the statute books.

He has little use for those who break the prohibition law and then think it cannot be enforced. This he terms "illogical." He does not care to discuss the raids conducted on the night clubs of whose existence he has no personal knowledge. A judge's place, he explains, is simply to act on those cases brought before him, and to see that they are fairly tried, and not to "clean up."

One reason Judge Atwell evades discussion of prohibition—save very generally—is because he feels that the bitterness engendered by this question, particularly in New York, makes fair treatment impossible. "You cannot have justice when each side questions the motives of the other," he declares.

"Then how," the judge was asked, "is it possible to obtain a jury to give a fair trial in a prohibition case?"

Faith in Juries

The answer to this question, Judge Atwell's court, is his method of selecting juries. Out of his years of experience on the bench, the judge has gained a deep faith in the many times "twelve good men and true" who have sat with him on many cases, and in mankind in general.

"No one," pronounced the benighted-looking, gray-haired jurist, whose quick action in court disputes belies his gentle manner, "is totally devoid of honor, of goodness, or of the power to think."

Appealing to these qualities in the men who come before him in the selection of juries, Judge Atwell, after asking the routine questions, puts to each what he calls the "big question," with an appeal to give it deep, earnest consideration: "Now, looking into your own heart and your own mind, are you sure there is no reason why you cannot give this defendant a fair trial?"

A simple question, yet one which calls forth the finest qualities of a man, the judge maintains. Ninety-nine men out of a hundred respond to it honestly, he believes. Through it, he feels he has been able to obtain fair trials for rich and poor, black and white, regardless of prejudice.

HELINGSBORG, Sweden, Sept. 17.—Such modern comforts as central heating and drainage have been discovered in a Swedish medieval castle, Glimmingebus, recently restored under the supervision of a government antiquarian, Dr. Sten Anjou. It is now one of the rarest sights of southern Sweden.

From an open hearth in the center of a huge basement kitchen, where two entire oxen could be roasted at the same time, stone flues were found to lead to the different apartments on the four upper floors and alongside one of the kitchen walls there was a stone sink with an outlet through the seven-foot wall to the outside. Built of uncut sand stone, imported from the Baltic island of Gotland, the walls taper until five feet thick at the top. On three sides the site is surrounded by artificial lakes and the approach on the fourth was originally cut by a double moat.

SCHOOLING ODDLY PLANNED FOR YOUNG EMPEROR OF ANNAM

PARIS, Sept. 17.—A special regime has been instituted for the education of the 14-year-old Emperor of Annam, His Majesty Bao Dai, who is completing his schooling in Paris and French resorts before assuming his hereditary rights in France's distant possession.

Bao Dai does not have to sit at the ordinary school-room desk of other pupils. Instead, he has a modern office building in his private apartment. All of his lessons are taken privately, professors selected by the government supplementing those of the Lycee Condorcet in daily visits to the youthful ruler.

There is a special "preceptor," who must not only report weekly to the government, but also to the boy's relatives. Bao Dai may wish to play football with his fellow-students, whom he sees only when they happen to pass beneath his windows on their way home, but "protocol" must be observed.

His only compensation is that he does not have to write out his "home work." Occasional verbal examinations are sufficient. When he becomes Emperor of Annam he will have a whole staff of professors at his disposal to solve any important problems.

On the other hand, he does not have the satisfaction of French schoolboys, for there is no public presentation of "prizes,"—usually volumes of inspiring philosophy or Jules Verne's tales—the imperial crown of Annam being considered sufficient reward for any degree of precocity.

Fond of Arithmetic On the records of the Lycee Condorcet, which will eventually give him a diploma, Bao Dai appears as "Vinh Thuy." He is said to be especially fond of arithmetic, but has considerable difficulty handling the French tongue. His favorite tutor is former Governor Charles of Indochina, who will probably return with him to Annam as an official counselor.

In another aristocratic Lycee or high school is registered Si H. draya Hulla, the eldest son of the King of Afghanistan. He follows the lectures, however, like any French boy. "He's just one of us," is the compliment his schoolmates pay him. They admit that they envy his ability to master Latin, for despite only three years of study he is several books ahead of most of his classmates.

Paris is also educating the son of the president of Afghanistan's Council of State, but Ghomal Mohammed, who is now 19 years old, does not care for classics. His bent is for physics and algebra, and during the last semester he won several first prizes for his proficiency.

PROFESSOR HEARD AT UNION SERVICE

Prof. H. F. Dean, new singing instructor at Antioch College, Yellow Springs, sang a solo "Elijah's Prayer" at the last union service of the season at First U. P. Church, Sunday evening.

Prof. Dean formerly sang at Christ Episcopal Church, Dayton. His singing was well appreciated by the large audience that attended the meeting. The Rev. D. A. Sellers of First Reformed Church, preached.

CHAPTER LIII

Oh, God in Heaven! His child!—dying. Nothing could save it. Back in the operating room, an interne and a nurse were doing all they could, Ballard, in Gethsemane, bent over the boy with the tousled hair and the blue-gray eyes, and waited.

"Are you ill, Dr. Riley?" The nurse looked at him, concerned. "You look so pale yourself."

"No." His voice was strained. "I am quite all right."

Suddenly Denny opened his eyes—slowly—painfully, and Ballard bent over him with his ear near his lips. He was going to try to speak.

"Mama—I want my pretty mama."

Ballard could hear no more. He stumbled into the next room, and, burying his head in his hands, sobbed great sobs that shook his body.

Lotus had told him Janet was in Cleveland. She would be home on the eight o'clock train. Three hours! He might live that long—but not much more.

His boy! His little boy! Why, he even had his brown, wavy hair and blue eyes. His boy even looked like him—and he had never known.

When he thought of Janet's suffering—her bravery—another sob would shake him. She had promised to be a good sport—to never bother him. Oh, God, she had kept her word!

It only he could die instead of the beautiful boy lying in there. Poor little Janet! He found himself praying to God to give him the power to give back their boy's life. But he knew he was powerless.

The injuries were internal—fatal. Ballard counted the minutes, and they seemed like hours. He told Lotus there was nothing to do but wait for the end, and she had fainted again. The shock was so great that a nurse had been assigned to put her in a room and look after her.

Ballard dismissed the nurse for a while. He wanted to be alone with his boy. With the little life that was ebbing so swiftly. He wanted to be there—alone—when Janet came.

Eight twenty; eight twenty-five! The door opened slowly, and Janet stumbled in. Her face was haggard and her eyes wild. With a little scream she ran to the bed and fell down on her knees.

"God, oh, God, dear God, be merciful. Give him back!"

Then she got up slowly and bent to look into the little face. Ballard could not speak. He stood at her side, his arm around her, but she did not seem to see him or feel it.

"My baby. He will die." Suddenly she looked up, searching the face of the man beside her for a ray of hope. Her hand went to her heart and her face went paler.

"Ballard!" With a little sob she fell into his arms and he held her so for a moment, trying to find his voice.

"This—is this my hospital—that is how I happen to be here."

"Oh, thank God." There were tears of relief coming into the red-brown eyes. "You—you will save him—for me. I know you can save him. You wouldn't let my baby die."

His voice was scarcely audible. "My darling—my Janet. I would gladly give my own life to save him. But there is no power on earth."

He was calling her darling—his Janet—his wife. Even in the face of her grief, the words burned into her heart. Ballard loved her—loved her—his arms were crushing her as though he could never let her go—"I have searched everywhere for you."

Mrs. Carter Van Arden sat in her box at the Metropolitan opera. A young smile played about her lips. She scarcely saw the beautifully-gowned women and rapturously-dressed men who sat around her. Her mind was traveling back to a trip on the train a few years before.

There had been a little girl in a saucy red hat who fidgeted and squirmed and held her knees to keep them from shaking because she was on her way to Broadway. A little girl who "thrived on sin" because she was a minister's daughter—and who wanted to stay "right in the heart of the great White Way."

She smiled and waited, impatiently. The Metropolitan's twenty-four-year-old prima donna was to make her debut. An American girl who had never been to Europe. A little Pittsburgh girl—an unknown.

Then Mrs. Carter Van Arden laughed.

How soon Broadway could forget!

And how fortunate in this case! They had not recognized the girl from her pictures. But that was not so very strange. She did not look like the same girl, with her hair in a soft marcel and the deep, sad eyes that seemed to burn in her white face.

In her dressing room, Mrs. Ballard Riley, with her head on her husband's shoulder and his lips buried in her coal black hair, was waiting for the curtain to rise. She was a little trembly with excitement. And she held to him tightly for comfort.

"Ballard, do you love me?" She looked, questioningly, into the blue eyes that seemed to shine into her face.

"Well, now, Mrs. Riley, I'll tell you more about that when I get you home." He kissed her, laughing.

The red-brown eyes clouded. "Oh, my darling, are you sure you didn't just marry me because you felt sorry for me? You hated marriage so—"

He crushed her to him, and the beating of his heart was like a little hammer against her breast.

"Oh, my dearest, don't ever say such a thing again! I couldn't live without you. What made you think of such a silly thing, now?"

"I have thought about it—often. It just comes to my mind—"

He shook his head hopelessly and smiled, the adorable, crooked little grin that she loved.

"Darling, your heart and my heart both had to be broken before we could realize what this old world was all about. Can't you see how fate treats us sometimes? Just go over our experiences and see if they don't almost seem as though they were planted in our way to bring us together—and make us over so we would be capable of being happy."

Janet reminisced: "Yes, I came here and met you and made a fool of myself. Then—do you know, Ballard," her voice was suddenly soft and sad, "sometimes I think little Denny was given to me to serve his purpose in the world—and then go. He came to me when you went out of my life—and was taken away when you came back."

He kissed the red-brown eyes. "And if I hadn't thought he was my baby—our child—I might never have known how much I loved you. At least, I might never have realized what it would mean to me to have a boy of my own and what you might have gone through. When I learned he wasn't our baby, and what you had done, I loved you all the more."

He held her to him closely. "Janet Riley, you are the biggest—the finest woman I have ever known."

Ballard said it so seriously that she laughed.

"Then you are a marrying man, Dr. Riley."

As suddenly as she had laughed, her face clouded, and she clung to him desperately. "He knew her thought, and kissed her, tenderly."

"My darling, you are worrying about tonight. You are afraid someone will recognize you. Do you think that makes any difference to me now?"

But Janet shook her head, and her hands went to her face as if she would shut out the pain of the thought.

"I would die, Ballard—with all this happiness, after suffering—I couldn't bear it."

"As if, dear," he told her, seriously, "anything could change our love. Isn't that all that matters?"

The little singer smiled through her tears. But her heart was heavy.

"Perhaps that is why she said 'Madame Butterfly' as it had never been sung before. And why the unhappy little Japanese seemed so real that there was no one in the great opera house but forgot that she was not really 'Butterfly' and that it was just make believe."

Ballard, sitting near, sent his heart out to her with every breath. He knew her voice was a very good one. But so real was her grief when she took her baby from her arms and sang, and so heart-breaking was her "One Fine Day" that he found himself asking, over and over, if that were really his little wife—his Janet.

Mrs. Van Arden was so surprised and glad, that she cried almost from the rising of the curtain, thoroughly enjoying herself, as women often do. But thousands cried with poor little "Butterfly" that night, for that matter. You would have to.

Especially, since you know her so well and know why it almost broke her heart to hold her baby in her arms and call across the waters to the man she loved.

Encore after encore, brought Janet for a curtain call at the end of the opera, so that it was exhaustion she played when the newspaper men assailed the stage door in droves and begged for an interview.

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 17.—In the motion picture colony only a few weeks, Texas Guinan, New York's leading night club hostess, has regained the popularity she held years ago when she was doing the heroine stuff in the old-time western films.

On the Warner Bros. lot where she is making "The Queen of Night Clubs," in Hollywood's night clubs and on the boulevard, the familiar "Hello Tex," marks her appearance.

If there was any doubt about the way Miss Guinan would get along with modern Hollywood it was removed by the way in which she ures, usually found in New York, were working in various sound pictures on that lot.

During her stay here La Guinan is occupying Marie Prevost's former home.

Despite the official cold should a Tex's return to Hollywood was something in the line of the "home boy makes good" serials.

When she boarded off a transcontinental train she was wearing enough jewelry to have shamed Peggy Hopkins Joyce.

When she left here after her wild west days she wasn't in poverty but certainly she couldn't have bought any of the ropes of pearls or the various diamond doodads she brought back with her.

Al Jolson, famous mammy singer, who is reported engaged to beautiful tap dancer, Ruby Keeler. The musical star was divorced by his second wife, the former Ethel Delmar, some three years ago.

passed over the frigid reception tendered her by city officials and civic bodies of Los Angeles.

She laughed again when she learned that the "affection dinner" in her honor had been called off because the Breakfast Club, where it was to be held, decided "unfavorable comment" might arise from renting its pavilion for a Texas Guinan whoopee.

"Some of those Breakfast Club boys might get out and try some of the good fresh air around here," was her first observation.

Later she made a joke of the whole affair by saying it was the first time I ever gave a sucker an even break—and look what happened to me. I had to buy my own dinner.

Tex, under her present arrangement, will make only one picture. It will have a Vitaphone accompaniment.

Tex thought "they just transplanted Broadway" the first day she was at Warner Bros.

FAIRFIELD FLYER SERIOUSLY HURT IN FALL FROM WINDOW

Lieut. O. O. Niergarth, assistant executive officer at Wilbur Wright Field, Fairfield, was seriously injured when he fell five stories at the Oliver Hotel, South Bend, Ind., Sunday morning about 4:30 o'clock.

It is said that Lieut. Niergarth suffers from gnomism and fell through an airshaft while walking in his sleep. His companion, Capt. Eugene E. Reinartz, flight surgeon and hotel attaché, found him lying on the roof of a two-story building, after his five-story fall. No bones were broken, examination showed, but he suffered serious internal hurts.

Lieut. Niergarth and Capt. Reinartz flew to South Bend, Saturday, to attend the second annual air meet of the St. Joseph Valley Aviation Club. They registered at the Oliver Hotel and were assigned to an inside room, on the fifth floor, with the window opening on the airshaft.

The aviator was removed to a South Bend hospital from the hotel. His wife and Lieut. C. C. Redmond, adjutant at Fairfield air depot, flew to South Bend Sunday, on receiving word of the accident.

Xenia Resident Describes How New Konjola Restored His Health After Short Treatment

Thousands of men and women in Xenia have been relieved of many of the worst forms of stomach, liver, kidney and bowel miseries through the use of this celebrated new Konjola medicine, and thousands of others in this city are still suffering from these ailments, but every day more and more of these same sufferers are turning to Konjola for relief. Hundreds of statements have been published, many from this city, in which is told how Konjola restored a new state of health. Just a few days ago Mr. Ernest Kersey, 4 South Miller Avenue, Xenia, made the following statement to the Konjola Man at the Gallaher Drug Store, 33 East Main St., this city, where he is explaining the merits of Konjola:

"I will always recommend Konjola to anyone who is suffering," said Mr. Kersey, "because this medicine ended all trace of stomach and kidney trouble for me. For over two years my stomach and kidneys had caused me intense suffering. My kidneys were in a very bad state and each action showed traces of sugar and a yellowish-brown sediment. Due to the disordered condition of my stomach every bite of food formed gas that pressed against my heart. Quite often I became so dizzy that I fell to the floor. One day while in Sabina, Ohio, I fell twice to the street. My appetite left me and I had no desire to eat because of the suffering afterward. For more than six years I did not enjoy a complete night's sleep and always felt worn-out. You can better realize my condition when I say that I spent two years in Leesburg for treatment. Even then I never knew what health was and thought I would go through the rest of my life in this condition."

"Just about this time I started on the treatment of Konjola and this medicine worked wonders on my system. In an amazing short time I noticed a new feeling of health over my entire system. I wouldn't think of missing a dose and soon had completed the entire treatment. Now I want to tell everyone that I have received permanent relief from my health troubles. I am able to eat all kinds of food without the least after effect. The gas bloating and dizzy spells are ended. It is a pleasure to sit down to a meal because I know that I will receive the proper nourishment. Konjola also regulated my kidneys and banished the unhealthy color and sediment. In every way I have been benefited and now sleep just like a child. It is a pleasure to endorse such a medicine as Konjola."

The Konjola Man is at the Gallaher Drug Store, 33 East Main St., Xenia, where he is daily meeting the public and introducing and explaining the merits of this medicine.

DERBY OR FEDORA? CLOTHES MAY AFFECT VOTE

HOOVER

SMITH

Derbies or Felt Fedoras? Snappy wing collars or sedate turn-overs? Suits of conservative cut, in quiet, solid colors, or cutaways and frocks in the latest mode, with stripes and plaids in nifty patterns?

These are some of the issues, aside from prohibition, farm relief, the tariff and platform pronouncements generally, that will be decided by the voters of these United States on November 6. For, while the results with respect to platform pledges may remain in doubt, style authorities are agreed that masculine garb in America will be largely influenced during the next four years by the sartorial keynote sounded by the incumbent of the White House.

Al's Garb Snappy
A Democratic victory, contrary to usual precedent, would place at the head of the government a really snappy dresser. For Al's garb is as peppy as his speech. Whether it's a reflection of his own personality, or merely the skill of his New York tailor, the fact remains that the Democratic candidate doesn't go in for subdued duds. Frocks and cutaways, stripes and plaids, colorful ties and weskits. Suits. And a brown derby!

By contrast, Hoover's sartorial getup bespeaks his quiet, rather retiring personality—perhaps also something of his practicality and efficiency. Blue serge is his standby. Until recently, when his friends persuaded him that as a presidential candidate he ought to add some variety to his costumes, he wore little else. In fact, it was commonly remarked that Hoover had carried his penchant for standardization even to his clothes, and that he ordered suits from his tailor by telephone, as he would order eggs and bacon from his grocer.

Hoover Conservative
Now, however, Hoover has added grays and browns, in solid patterns, to his campaign array of suits. In hot weather he combines his usual double-breasted blue serge coat with light trousers and shoes. Winter and summer, except on rare occasions, the ensemble is topped off by a conservative felt fedora.

One item, however, on which both candidates agree, is the

EXAMINATION FOR TEACHERS PLANNED

The next uniform examination for teachers in the state will be held Saturday, September 29. No elementary lists will be furnished for teachers at this time and no examination in elementary subjects offered.

This examination is only for those who have not had opportunity to take an examination and for those who have been assigned to teach subjects other than those for which they have already been certified. All certificates issued as a result of this examination will cover the entire year beginning September 1, 1928.

ORCHESTRAS WILL COMBINE IS WORD

Clarence Jeffries' popular Xenia orchestra and Ernie Schmidt's Springfield band are soon to combine, Mr. Jeffries announces. Both orchestras are six-piece musical organizations and after the merger is effected, the joint band will be able to furnish from six to ten pieces for dances. An entertainer is also to be added, Ernie Schmidt will direct the band.

PREDICTS U. S. TO SOON LEAD EUROPE IN AIRWAY SERVICE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—Although air passenger travel in the United States has developed less rapidly than air-mail traffic, passenger service within one year will be as great as in Europe, according to a statement by L. D. Gardner, president of the Aeronautic Chamber of Commerce, made public by the department of commerce.

"If in one and a half years our present remarkable progress has been made, it is safe to say that the next five years will see developments in this field which will more than fulfill the hopes of even the most sanguine exponents of air travel," Gardner said.

"The United States will forge ahead in its air commerce at home. Huge air liners will fly from one end of the continent to the other, day and night, with the safety and assurance of the best equipped railway of today."

The chief present obstacle to development of air passenger service in this country is the fast night railway service between the principal cities. This handicap will be reduced with the lighting of airways, designed to promote night air transportation.

The aeronautics branch of the department of commerce announced the mileage of United States airways operating August 15, 1928, the twenty-fifth anniversary of airplane flight, at 13,131 miles. It was recalled that in 1850, twenty-five years after establishment of the first railway, only 9,021 miles of railway lines were in use.

At the present time the air-miles are flown daily 24,974 miles; while the mileage flown daily in all service amounts to 32,240. The airway mileage of Europe in 1927 was 36,507. Twenty-seven important inter-city lines now operate regularly, and five others are scheduled for early inauguration. The latter are Laredo-New Orleans, St. Louis-Omaha, Miami-Atlanta, New York-Montreal, and Atlanta-Chicago, with St. Louis spur.
